

Immigration rules force domestics into black market

NEW YORK (AP) — Silently, steadily a black market in imported domestics is flourishing across the United States, an unwanted offspring of the revised Immigration Act.

Government sources say the illegal human traffic is the work of a handful of immigration lawyers and employment agents who spotted a chance to make money by circumventing some provisions of the act.

Of an estimated 25,000 alien domestics now entering the nation each year, industry sources estimate that over half are admitted illegally with fraudulent papers provided—at a price—to make them immediately available to work as domestics. An estimated 5.5 million American homes seek household help, one source said, and Americans willing to do such work fill only about one-quarter of the demand.

With legitimate employment agencies complaining they are being put out of business by the shady competition, federal, state and local authorities are tightening law enforcement. P. A. Esperdy, director of the New York-based District 3 office of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, says flatly there are "widespread violations of the law" involving "illegal practices by lawyers and employment agencies." He has a large investigative staff probing the racket, and some deportations and indictments already have resulted. The American Bar Association also is investigating, with disbarment of some lawyers a possibility. Federal law prescribes punishment of up to five years imprisonment and $10,000 fines for falsification of entry and employment papers. Most states have a similar law. The Immigration Act of 1952, with its revised quota systems, virtually cut off Britain and northern Europe as a source for domestics, a government spokesman explained. Employment agents had to turn to the Caribbean countries and Latin America, since the new law—as it affects the Western Hemisphere—does not give priorities to skilled applicants or limit the immigration from a single nation to 20,000 yearly, as it does for the rest of the world. The provisions of the revised law are not to take full effect until July 1. But the time required for processing applications and clearing red tape before that date already has reduced to a mere trickle the flow of servants from outside the Western Hemisphere, an industry source said. Laws in this country require worker protection, limit agent fees and require payment of area wage scales certified by the U.S. Department of Labor. A government spokesman explained the racketeers simply ignore the requirements, charging both the domestic and the employer what the traffic will bear and selling their "product."

Firearms control in bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee voted Wednesday to cement into a broad anti-crime bill a section providing tougher federal controls over firearms sales.

But, contrary to President Johnson's recommendations, the new restrictions would not prohibit interstate mail order sales of rifles and shotguns to individuals.

However, they would ban such sales of other firearms, including concealable weapons like pistols and revolvers.

There also would be an outright ban on sales to persons under 21 years of age.

The bill would make it unlawful for any person other than a licensed dealer to transport or receive in his state of residence any firearm other than a rifle or shotgun purchased or otherwise obtained outside his state.

This prohibition is extended to a rifle or shotgun if the purchase of such a weapon would be unlawful in the state where the person resides.

The present firearms act, enacted in 1938, has a similar prohibition. The new bill is designed to make it more enforceable.

Another provision intended to implement state and local firearms controls would make it unlawful for a licensed dealer to deliver any firearm to a person with reasonable cause to believe its receipt or possession would be in violation of state or local law.

As under present law, mail order sales of firearms or ammunition to fugitives, felons and persons under indictment for certain crimes would be prohibited. The bill goes a step further by applying this ban also to over-the-counter sales.

Reds ignore own meeting

BUDAPEST (AP) — A preparatory unity conference of Communist parties opened Wednesday in a sealed-off hotel with barely half the 88 delegations invited showing up. Many of the absentees said the meeting's only purpose was to entrench Soviet dominance over the world's Marxist parties.

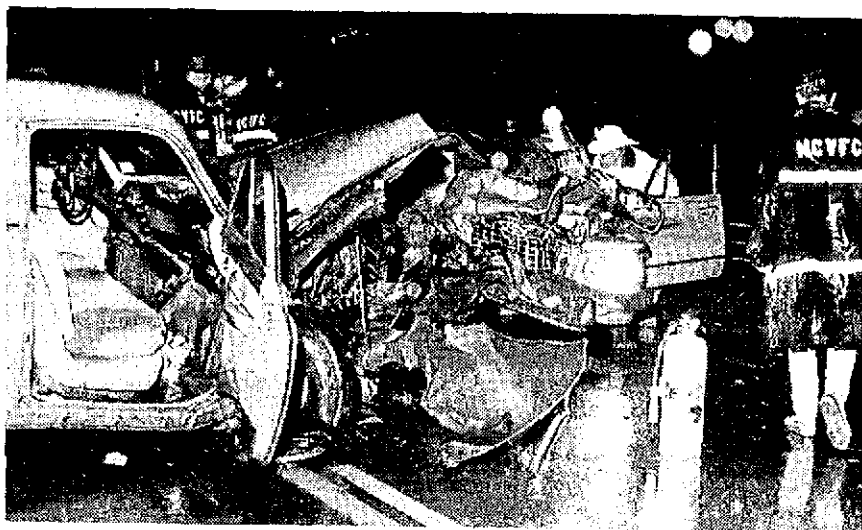

The stay at homes—49 by unofficial count—included Red China and Albania, critics of the Soviet Union from the far left, and Yugoslavia and Romania, both to the right of Moscow. Cuba was reported missing as were North Vietnam, North Korea and other Asian parties.

HHH may decide on Saturday

NEW YORK (AP) — All three major television networks will provide live television coverage of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's address Saturday at 1 p.m. before the Democrats for Humphrey luncheon in Washington.

Humphrey is expected to announce then that he is seeking the Democratic presidential nomination.

In addition, the CBS, NBC and Mutual Broadcasting radio networks will carry the speech live.

Rockefeller worries over dollar crisis

NEW YORK (AP) — Banker David Rockefeller said Wednesday the dollar crisis has been shoved far too low on the scale of national priorities, weakening the country's ability to deal effectively with problems considered more urgent.

He did not say explicitly what the higher priorities were but he made it plain he believed failure to deal with the skidding reputation of the dollar was eroding the nation's role as world leader.

"Confidence in the dollar is virtually synonymous with confidence in the ability of the United States to fulfill its role of leadership," said the president of Chase Manhattan Bank, the nation's second largest.

He told 1,500 guests at the annual luncheon of the American Newspaper Publishers Association that there was no more urgent need than a tax increase that would halve a federal budget deficit he predicted would mushroom to $20 billion this year.

He coupled the call for a tax increase with another to slice government spending by "several billions more from low priority areas."

Paris remains likely spot

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has sent another message to North Vietnam in the still-unsuccessful effort to achieve agreement on a site for preliminary peace talks, the State Department disclosed Wednesday.

It was understood that the new U.S. message went to Hanoi Monday and amounted to a diplomatic prod to the Reds to respond to earlier U.S. offers of any of its list of 15 Asian and European capitals as a meeting place.

It was the fifth such communication from Washington to Hanoi announced since the opposing sides publicly declared three weeks ago their willingness to enter into direct talks. Since then they have been sparring over where their envoys should meet.

In revealing the latest American message, State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey added: "I could not report progress" towards accord on a site.

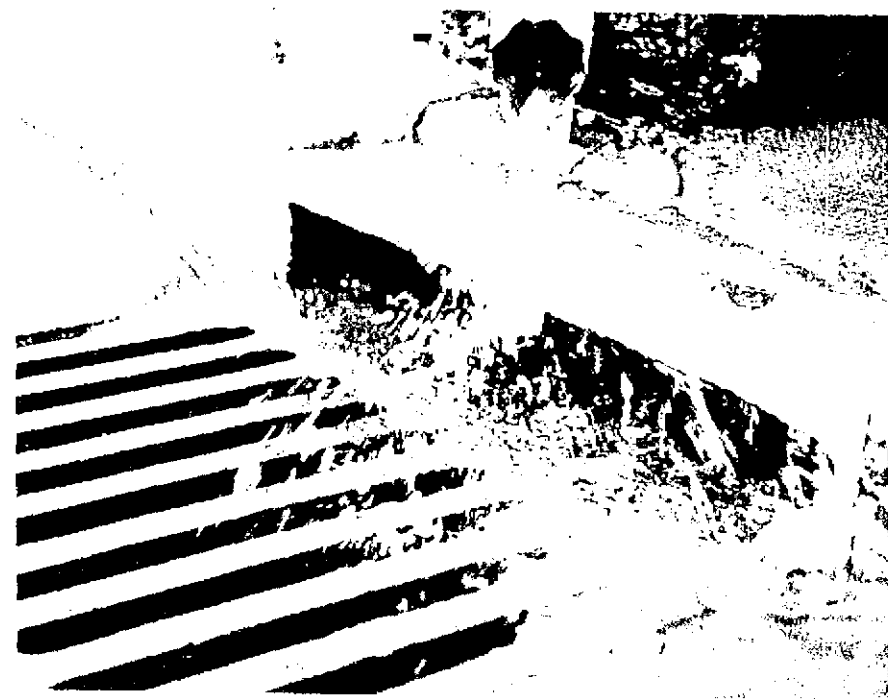

Other U.S. authorities said no official message has been received since the second from Hanoi on the subject, dated April 11. That proposed Warsaw as a meeting location. The first North Vietnamese offer, on April 8, suggested Phnom Penh. The United States has objected to both Warsaw and Phnom Penh on various grounds.

The State Department spokesman's remarks appeared to be a follow-up to President Johnson's statement at a diplomatic reception Tuesday—not further explained at the time—that the United States had been in touch with Hanoi again. The message was reportedly routed through Vientiane, the Laotian capital where both sides have embassies.

State telephone workers strike

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Federation of Telephone Workers went on strike at midnight Wednesday against the Bell Telephone Co. in a contract dispute.

The FTWP, which represents 13,000 plant, accounting and service department employees across the state, and Bell representatives had been bargaining on a wage reopener clause. But negotiations broke off earlier in the day.

Heavy rains fell over the Pocono Mountains and the sight of water gushing from rain pipes throughout the area was welcome Wednesday as upwards of three inches of rain broke an unusual early spring drought in Eastern Pennsylvania. (Staff Photo by MacLeod)

Year's heaviest rainfall totals almost 3 inches

STROUDSBURG — The year's heaviest rainfall fell in Monroe County Wednesday when a torrential downpour dumped about three inches of water on the area.

Flash flooding was prevented only because the ground was dry due to lack of rain in recent weeks, William Hagerty, U.S. Weather Bureau reporter, said.

The rain started at 9 a.m. and it was raining lightly at midnight.

Area streams became swollen but there were no reports of overflowing.

One helpful effect of the storm, which turned some streets into rivers, was the lessening of the threat of forest fires.

John Bitzer, district forester, said that before the rain started the burning index was in the mid 50s, a high reading but that the index fell to the 20s during the afternoon.

The heaviest rain fell in the Stroudsburg area at about 3:30 p.m. At 6:30, Hagerty said that 2.45 inches of rain had fallen.

At about 11 p.m., Hagerty said the total had risen to 2.85 inches and the rain diminished.

A rain gauge in the Scotran area showed that approximately three inches had fallen by 10:30 p.m.

Driving was hazardous throughout the day and several serious automobile accidents were reported in various sections of the county, with three taking place at the intersection of Routes 611 and 940 in Mt. Pocono.

Heavy rains fell throughout the state and as a result Gov. Raymond Shafer lifted a ban on smoking and open fires in and around woodland.

Shafer lifted the ban, in effect since noon Friday, on the recommendation of Dr. Maurice K. Goddard, state secretary of forests and waters.

Goddard said there had been sufficient rainfall across the state to reduce the extreme danger of forest fires, but cautioned against being careless with fire.

Hagerty said that total rainfall to date this year is from six to seven inches less than the total for the corresponding period last year.

Eshback's final tally more than 1,000 votes

STROUDSBURG — Incumbent State Representative J. Russell Eshback won by more than a 1,000-vote plurality Tuesday in his bid to run for a sixth term in the 139th District.

Following are the votes by counties in the 139th race:

	Wayne	Pike	Monroe	Totals
Eshback	1,293	1,414	1,646	4,353
Finn	2,613	304	248	3,165
Krawitz	705	358	835	1,898

Monroe County incumbent Republican chairman Dr. Evan C. Reese crushed his challenger by a nearly 2,000-vote margin. East Stroudsburg State college assistant professor John Garman received 167 votes from his late write-in campaign compared to Reese's 3,025 according to final figures from the Monroe County Courthouse.

Mt. Pocono attorney Peter J. O'Brien, unchallenged for the Democratic nomination for representative in the 138th District, received a total 2,270 votes from Monroe, Pike and Wayne Counties.

Stuart Pipher received a total 1,820 votes for the Monroe County Democratic chairman post. James Berger of Polk Township received 12 write-ins for committeeman.

Delegates to the Republican National Convention, with total results reported from Monroe, Lehigh and Northampton, are John Wood and Barbara Benner. Wood pulled 23,558 and Benner, 21,039. Defeated were Dr. Evan C. Reese, 17,358 and George Dismore.

Alternates to the Republican National Convention are Theodore Berger, 13,791, and David Stoddard, 11,338. Defeated were Glenn Fisher and Ernest Farmer.

Delegates to the Democratic National Convention are John Coleman, 11,812; Paul A. Pfretzschner, 7,398; Justin D. Jivlanio, 12,737 and Robert Ungerleider, 8,560.

Democratic alternate delegates are Glenn R. Moyer, 12,299, and Edward P. Shaugnessy, 12,091.

Allies kill 1,943 Reds in Delta

SAIGON (AP) — Intensive allied operations in the Mekong Delta have killed 1,943 enemy troops in the past six weeks and have flushed newly equipped North Vietnamese regulars, U.S. officers said Wednesday.

The attention devoted to this populous, lush rice-growing region showed allied concern because the enemy has been rebuilding his forces since the Tet offensive that wrecked some of the main delta cities.

A clash 65 miles south of Saigon Tuesday was typical of the kind of fighting that has been breaking out almost daily since the allies resumed their delta sweeps early in March looking for the enemy.

Rockefeller has been a long-time proponent of both the tax increase and the budget cut as means of strengthening the dollar.

"Recent events have called into serious question our ability to manage our currency and our finances," he told the publishers. "Unless we resolve that question promptly and convincingly."

Schweiker happy with Clark's vote

Record Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON, D.C. — Rep. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., was jubilant over the poor showing made by Sen. Joseph S. Clark in the Democratic primary against Rep. John Dent.

Although Clark won over the relatively unknown Dent, who entered the race late, he got only about 53 per cent of the vote.

According to incomplete and unofficial statewide totals, Clark polled 442,095 votes to Dent's 384,300.

Clark won a slim victory in Monroe County. The incumbent received 1,597 votes to Dent's 1,155, according to complete but unofficial totals.

Schweiker saw this as a good omen for his own campaign against Clark in the fall.

"Mr. Clark is a model 'I' in the space age," he said in a Washington news conference Wednesday afternoon, "stalled by the side of the road."

The youthful Schweiker — he is 42 to Clark's 67 and looks even younger — pressed the age difference hard.

"Mr. Clark and I speak from two generations of thought," he said.

"Mr. Clark persists in looking in the rear-view mirror of the 30s. I insist we must have modern solutions for the pressing problems of the 60s and 70s."

The Montgomery County congressman attributed Clark's failure to defeat Dent by the two to one vote he had predicted to a "basic anti-Clark feeling" in Pennsylvania.

He accused Clark of "not doing his homework" and not keeping up with his constituents.

Schweiker said that a senator could not "sit back in Washington and make a few television shows."

Schweiker thought that he stood a good chance of picking up the vote of disgruntled Democrats who voted for Dent in Tuesday's primary election.

He said that he had sent Dent a telegram on his "fantastic" showing.

He also said that he would be delighted to have Dent campaign for him, but gave no indication that the congressman would do so.

Dent is running for re-election to the House from Westmoreland County.

Schweiker said that his own campaign was entering what he called its second phase. The first phase, he said, was to show early strength and thus discourage opposition in the Republican primary.

The second phase of the Schweiker plan is to get known in the upstate areas.

The Republican candidate said that he was making between five and ten speeches a week in these counties. He explained that, in order to do this, he flew to Pennsylvania in the evening and back to Washington in the morning.

HARRISBURG (AP) — House Republicans have retained political control of the chamber for the balance of 1968 with the task for the GOP leadership now one of making the slim majority work on major party issues.

Apparently, the split with the minority Democrats in six special elections Tuesday boosted a Republican strength in the 203-man House to 104, only two votes more than the 102 it takes to pass legislation on straight party lines.

But the six-month battle over Gov. Shafer's $266 million tax program last year, when the GOP also started out with a 104-99 margin, demonstrated the slight constitutional advantage is not necessarily workable.

Two staunch Republican hold-outs, coupled with illnesses, absences and solid Democratic opposition, stymied the fiscal affairs of the Commonwealth for half a year.

Five proposals carry easily

Voters okay constitution revision

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Pennsylvania's voters, who otherwise displayed widespread apathy toward the primary election, overwhelmingly approved Tuesday five proposals designed to modernize the state's constitution.

Gov. Shafer immediately called the election outcome the "most significant long-range achievement for Pennsylvania in this century."

Shafer, who made constitutional revision the No. 1 goal of his administration when he took office 15 months ago, held a news conference in Harrisburg Wednesday morning to discuss the primary.

"I am proud of Pennsylvanians today," he told newsmen. "The victory is their victory; one that will have great meaning to their future and the future of their children."

All five of the proposals for updating the state's 94-year-old basic charter were adopted by impressive margins although two of the questions faced stiff opposition in some areas.

With 9,221 of the state's 9,460 precincts reporting, the proposals on local government, state finance and legislative apportionment were approved by margins of up to 439,000 votes.

Although the judiciary and the taxation proposals proved less popular, both were carried by more than 100,000 votes. The stiffest opposition was encountered in western Pennsylvania.

The five proposals, which will replace four key sections of the Constitution, were drafted by a convention that met for 90 days late last year and early this year.

Both the Republican and the Democratic parties had endorsed the proposals before the election, and a bipartisan team of influential citizens had vigorously campaigned across the state in their behalf.

At Wednesday's news conference, Shafer, a Republican, had praised former Govs. William W. Scranton, also a Republican, and George M. Leader, a Democrat, who served as co-chairmen of the bipartisan citizens' group.

Shafer also took a parting jab at critics of constitutional revision.

"The vote," he said, "was an act of courage by the people in finally overcoming the scare tactics of selfish interests that were used so effectively for decades to stop constitutional reform."

The governor also said that he would soon appoint a special commission to make recommendations on how the legislature should go about implementing the constitutional proposals that require legislation.

The commission, he said, is to be made up of representatives of the legislative and executive branches of state government and members of the Pennsylvania Bar Association.

Many proposals are going to require legislation for implementation.

The local government proposal, for example, stipulates that the legislature must adopt uniform, statewide procedures and laws on mergers, consolidations and boundary changes within two years.

Nixon's Republican write-in victory doesn't alter Gov. Shafer's plans

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer said Wednesday he still planned to lead an uncommitted delegation to the Republican National Convention despite the impressive showing of former Vice President Richard M. Nixon in the Pennsylvania presidential preference primary.

"Dick Nixon did receive the most write-in votes," Shafer acknowledged, but the governor quickly noted that Nixon currently is the only announced candidate for the GOP presidential nomination.

Shafer, speaking at a news conference, discounted the write-ins cast for Nixon and others as representing only "pocket of support" and not a general consensus of Republicans statewide.

"I don't believe the result was particularly significant in the over-all situation," Shafer said, adding that his plans to be a "favorite son" in order to hold the delegation together were not altered by the primary.

Unofficial and incomplete returns showed Nixon holding a 3-to-1 margin over Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York. Neither man's name was on the ballot, and neither campaigned for votes in Pennsylvania.

Shafer said he also did not believe the victory by U. S. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota in the presidential preference balloting among Pennsylvania Democrats was significant.

Nixon's write-in vote tops other Republicans in county

STROUDSBURG — Richard M. Nixon easily defeated New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, 190 to 85, during Tuesday's election in Monroe County.

All presidential votes, with the exception of Sen. Eugene McCarthy's, were write-ins.

McCarthy led all presidential hopefuls in county balloting with 1,540, according to complete but still unofficial returns. He also received 30 write-in votes.

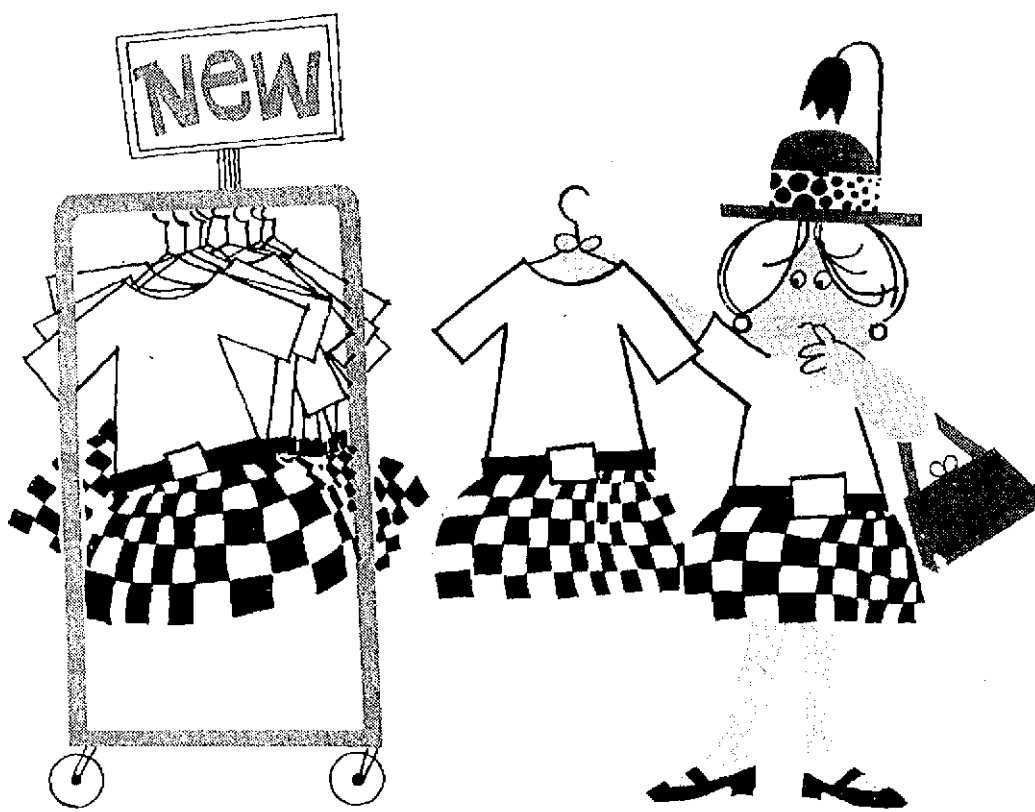

Other persons receiving presidential write-ins were Robert F. Kennedy, 99; Hubert H. Humphrey, 96; President Lyndon Johnson, 50; Gov. Raymond Shafer, 20; Gov. George Wallace, 18; Gov. Ronald Reagan, 14; Sen. Charles Percy, three; Mayor John Lindsey, three, and Gov. Mark Hatfield, Gov. George Romney and William Buckley, one each.

Party committee posts filled by Pike County voters

MILFORD — Slightly more than half of the registered Pike County Republicans eligible to vote in Tuesday's preferential Primary went to the polls and Assembly, and the delegates to the national convention in addition to the local committeemen and women. The total Democratic vote wasn't available Wednesday, but indications were that about half of the registered Democrats turned out to give McCarthy 278 votes as their presidential candidate.

Following are Democratic votes in Pike County for the Senate, judge and state treasurer.

More stayed home than voted

Two-thirds as many people stayed home as voted, but the 1968 primary election was held in Monroe County and the other counties which make up the state of Pennsylvania on Tuesday.

There were more names on the ballots than in the polling booths. Less than 35 per cent of the eligible voters in Pennsylvania voted and the figure was something like 33 per cent in Monroe County.

The only people showing any excitement were those running for office and even in their cases a yawn had to be stifled. In fact, the five Constitutional Convention questions displayed a great deal more excitement than the humans appearing in the political waltz.

J. Russell Eshback won the nomination for a sixth term in the General Assembly, over Henry Finn and Edwin Krawitz, a result that surprised absolutely nobody.

Wide approval

The five questions containing seven Constitutional Convention proposals received approval throughout the state and Pennsylvania's lattered and torn constitution will receive a new writing on new paper at age 94 years.

There were other races of a local nature too, but none strong enough to draw Johnny Q. Public from his easy chair or from a previously planned event.

Only the two ballot battles mentioned and the manner in which Dr. Evan C. Reese, Republican party chairman from Monroe County, wrote off the write-in campaign of John Garman could even be remotely connected with an election - even a primary struggle.

However, on the state and national scene there were too marked developments that must be considered worthy of note as far as November's showdown battle is concerned.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark, seeking his third term in Washington, didn't appear to be bothered much by an anti-Clark campaign waged by the Pennsylvania Federation of Sportsmen and its subsidiaries.

Clark and the sportsmen have been waging a running battle over gun legislation and the latter endorsed Clark's primary opponent, John H. Dent, and Rep. Richard S. Schweiker, who will oppose Clark in November's winner-take-all struggle.

Humphrey in limelight

Nationally the limelight has suddenly shifted squarely into the starlit eyes of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey. The number two man in the government of the United States is making a threat to become the number one man in the Democratic Party, although he hasn't as yet announced his candidacy for the presidential nomination.

Humphrey has been gaining surprising strength in a number of corners of the United States in recent weeks and Tuesday was the number one write-in candidate in Monroe County, picking up 106 votes as compared to 101 for Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy was the only presidential hopeful on the ballot in the Pennsylvania Primary this year and picked up a total of 1,541 votes in Monroe County where he has had a very active organization working in his behalf.

Virtually everybody, except maybe Gene Mauch, manager of the Philadelphia Phillies, received a write-in vote. In addition to Humphrey and Kennedy, the list includes: Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, Richard M. Nixon, President Lyndon B. Johnson, Gov. Raymond P. Shafer, George Wallace, former governor of Georgia; Gov. Ronald Reagan, California; Sen. Charles Percy, Illinois; Gov. Mark Hatfield, Mayor John Lindsey, New York; Gov. George Romney, of Michigan and William Buckley.

However, it was a dull election, made even more dull by people who refused to fulfill their God-given right and obligation to vote - regardless of the degree of excitement.

Story of warfare

NEW YORK — People . . . Places . . .

If you loathe the war in Vietnam, and want confirmation of how horrid it can be, then you'll not want to miss "A Face of War," Gene Jones's remarkable documentary.

Gene, one of the few native-born of Washington, D. C., started as a cameraman for the Washington Times-Herald and later the Washington Post. He went on from there to such wars as he was old enough to attend, has been wounded four times, is perhaps the only civilian ever decorated with the Purple Heart by the Marine Corps.

There are a minimum of contrived shots in "A Face of War." The narration is not by some pro with a deep voice; it is by the hapless people involved in the film: the wounded cursing, the children crying, the captured Viet Cong protesting their innocence, the Hanoi and Saigon radio singing out their separate cayoles.

It's hard to guess how "A Face of War" will do, commercially. Jones and his crew, all of whom were wounded, spent 97 days and nights filming it with the point squad of the leading platoon of Mike Company, Third Battalion of the Seventh Marine Regiment, up around the DM.

Their product is tough to take, which is the prime reason why it will be shown mainly in "art" theaters. But, my God, what a bloody slice of life, as life is lived in Vietnam.

I've got a great, simple-minded idea about what to do during the early (and later, much later) stages of the peace negotiations and the war in Vietnam. Why not stop killing one another while peace is being discussed?

The massive puzzlement of the peace talks that ended the war in Korea, which extended over more than a year, was that the negotiators talked peace in shouts. They had to do so to make themselves heard above the roar of the continuing battle. About 10,000 Americans fell during those talks, and many more North Koreans and Chinese. As in that war, and this, we killed four or five times as many of them as they killed us. That was scarcely any comfort to the "winners."

Same pattern is about to be followed in the case of the war in Vietnam. We and they will continue to kill while we discuss the best ways and means of not killing.

The simplest of us -- and I am in their ranks -- must ask "why?" Why not stop killing at least long enough for the discussions on how to stop killing? Is that too difficult? Is that preposterous? Is it against the rules of war? The Geneva Convention? The Ten Commandments?

Most of us in America were brought up to believe that the Asiatic has such a low regard for human life, including his own, that he thinks nothing of risking it, even giving it, in hopeless attacks and fanatical charges in the time of war or lesser trouble.

The crazy Banzai rushes by the Japanese in World War II are cases in point; also the way the Chinese rolled back MacArthur in Korea in the face of tremendous losses, and now the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

As a more or less conscientious reporter, I don't recall any effort on my part or that of my colleagues to ask the Asiatic soldier whether he agrees with this estimate of him. Letters and diaries plucked from the dead enemy on Two Jima, Pork Chop Hill and Khe Sanh indicate he loved life every inch as much as the American he fought.

Still, the fighting goes on as peace talks get off to their faltering start, and the shooting throws out the matter of the wings of the dove.

We're all relieved, naturally, that Sargent Shriver, our next ambassador to the Court of St. Charles, has satisfied the senate on the question of whether he will or will not be an extension of Bobby Kennedy's foreign policy during his probably short time in Paris.

One sometimes wonders why anyone would even want to be a United States Ambassador, especially to France at this time in history. Sen. Karl E. Mundt, the Republican from South Dakota, asked Shriver, "If your wife (a sister of Bobby's) suggest that you come out and help her brother, what are you going to do then?"

"Resign now," Sarge should have answered. But he didn't, and so it's likely that he'll be stuck with the lousy job until he submits his resignation to the next President in November, as will Ambassador-Elect Henry Cabot Lodge, who is headed for West Germany.

The Good Humor people would have offered both of them better summer jobs.

Regular occurrence

WASHINGTON — While the Pueblo is a familiar topic of conversation, it generally has been overlooked that United States vessels regularly are captured and harassed by foreign nations.

In the main, our commercial fishing boats have run into trouble off the coasts of Ecuador, Peru and other Latin American republics. Many of them claim their territorial limits extend 12 miles out to sea, which is in contrast to the United States' mere three-mile limit.

A Senate document which matter-of-factly reports the adventures of American sea-captains attempting to fish in the Gulf of Mexico reminds one of Hollywood movies set in the 1890s and starring Gregory Peck. Unfortunately, these real dramas took place between 1951 and 1957.

Ecuador would seem to be the most "Pun" country. It has seized, boarded and fired at U.S. ships as far as 30 miles off its coast. Fines have been as high as $10,000 and as little as $60 or a case of whiskey, depending on which petty official was doing the fining.

Buying licenses
American captains have found themselves buying "fishing licenses" for the open sea from government bureaucrats, port authorities and patrol boat officers. One American ship was boarded off Ecuador and, even though it had a "license" it had paid for, was fined $8,000 for not "showing" its license when it left port.

Some American skippers have shown resolution under fire, on the theory that phony licenses, fines, etc., amount to nothing more than what we once went through with Barbary pirates. (They forget, of course, that America has softened considerably since the days when it knew how to deal with pirates.)

A Peruvian cutter ordered one of our captains to "come aboard immediately or we will sink you." The Americans ignored the order and the Peruvians withdrew in confusion. An Ecuadorian gunboat shot and wounded an American officer 35 miles off Ecuador and fined the ship $43,000. A Colombian cutter fired 12 rounds at one of our boats, but the Americans escaped in the darkness.

Discretion, naturally, often is the better part of valor. Take the time a Chilean air plane strafed in front of an American tuna fishing fleet and ordered it into a Chilean port. The fleet went and was fined $6,000. The name of one of our ships, believe it or not, was "Chicken of the Sea."

Sooner or later Washington and Hanoi must stop this quibbling and get down to serious disagreement.

Sen. J. William Fulbright's wife said he should keep his mouth shut. But, first, he should remove his foot.

The telephone workers strike would have to last several years before the phone companies would be as inefficient as the Post Office.

The Allen-Scott Report

Gag on offensive military action

Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — President Johnson has imposed tight restrictions on what the military can say publicly about his Vietnam peace overtures and the eutback of United States bombing of North Vietnam.

This censorship of the military was ordered in a classified directive prepared by Defense Secretary Clark Clifford and approved by the President.

Under its blackout provisions, officers in Vietnam and Washington are barred from discussing their personal views on proposed negotiations and talks between Washington and Hanoi with newspaper reporters or radio-television correspondents.

American field commanders in Vietnam also have been instructed to play down in their public statements all U.S. military actions which appear to be offensive rather than defensive.

Significantly, the President's censorship edict comes at a time when State Department officials are being encouraged by the White House to accept speaking engagements around the U.S. to support the President's peace overtures in Vietnam.

U.S. military authorities here are expressing concern that the State Department is giving the American public the impression there will be a military de-escalation of the war, when the evidence indicates that the opposite will occur.

Citing the Communists' Tet offensive, these military officers warn that the North Vietnamese are building for another push against major South Vietnamese cities and U.S. bases by mid-May. Several believe the attack will come before the end of the month.

Clampdown
Administration insiders say Clifford and Secretary Rusk recommended the censorship move after U.S. military officers in Saigon began playing up their latest offensive operation — called "Toan Thang" or "Complete Victory" — which was ordered by the Joint Chiefs of Staff to protect Saigon from another Communist blitz. More than 100,000 American and Vietnamese troops took part in coordinated military action in 11 provinces surrounding that capital.

But, after their first announcements, U.S. briefing officers were barred from using the term "Complete Victory" to discuss the operation.

U.S. military authorities are also upset over the Pentagon's ban on giving out news that a key American radar installation in northern Laos was wiped out by North Vietnamese troops.

The mountaintop radar station kept track of Soviet-built Migs and jet bombers flying from Southern China into North Vietnam.

The strategic station was the prime target

WASHINGTON—There are strong reasons why the candidates for both Presidential nominations ought to face each other on television.

It would be valuable for the voters to see Vice President Humphrey and Senators Kennedy and McCarthy on the same nationwide program each expounding his case—and the same for Nixon and Rockefeller. This is why:

1—It seems increasingly likely that the opinion polls will be more controlling at the conventions than the results of the primaries. The primaries only show how a candidate attracts the voters of his own party in a few states; the polls show how well he attracts all voters and thus tell more about his chances of winning the election.

2—If the polls are going to be as decisive as seems probable, then the whole nation should be able to measure the candidates more effectively than is possible when they are campaigning most of the time in a few primary states.

3—The value of such joint television confrontations is not primarily to sharpen policy differences among the candidates. To the extent there are such differences, they should be known. The main value of viewing them together is to measure their personal fitness for office—their credibility, their trustworthiness, their ability to unite and reconcile a divided nation.

The best—and the worst—of a political candidate comes out in joint debate and, since the polls reflect national opinion, the voters as a whole ought to have this additional means of judging the contenders.

Two ways
There are two ways (this could be done).

The nationwide TV panel shows—Meet the Press, Face the Nation, Issues and Answers—could invite the Democratic candidates to appear on the same program—and the Republican aspirants on another Sunday.

Readers are asking . . .

Are male and female hormones present in both men and women? Is there any danger to its prolonged use?

Female sex hormones are called estrogens; male sex hormones are called androgens. Both are present in both male and female. As the female advances through puberty and into adolescence there is a decrease amount of male hormones. Similarly, when a man develops into adulthood, the female estrogens diminish.

In healthy men and women the balance of these hormones is maintained up until the change of life or menopause, which comes to most women about the age of forty-five.

There is also a male "menopause" at about the same age when there is a diminishing of the male hormone.

of the recent Communist offensive in Northern Laos. It was also the objective of a surprise raid by two North Vietnamese aircraft into Laos several weeks ago.

Since the capture of this key installation, at least two dozen MIG-21s and two medium-bombers, capable of carrying nuclear weapons have been flown to fields near Hanoi, U.S. intelligence reports.

Under the President's latest military censorship edict, U.S. officers can say nothing about these ominous developments on grounds they might upset the prospects for negotiations.

Dog days
The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese have launched one of the strangest offensives of the war in South Vietnam.

During the past month, the Communists have been killing all the dogs in or near the provincial capitals and other strategic villages.

South Vietnamese intelligence officials say the all-out dog-slaughtering operation was apparently launched to silence the animals. The barking of dogs during the Tet blitz warned numerous communities of the enemy's surprise attacks.

The dogs were credited with keeping many of the understaffed South Vietnamese home guard units from being caught by complete surprise, and in several instances enabled the guard units to call for reinforcements from American and South Vietnamese regular troops.

"The role that the barking dogs played in saving South Vietnam is one of the great untold stories of this war," stated a U.S. Army report which has just arrived here from Saigon.

By killing the dogs now, the Communists hope to destroy this deadly alarm system so their "second round" of attacks against the cities and major U.S. bases will not be signaled in advance.

Note: In Hanoi for their carefully guided tours of bomb and missile damage recently, American network TV commentators were served "dog meat" while being wined and dined by North Vietnamese officials.

Local Communists in Hong Kong are mapping their strategy for the summer against the colony's British Administration. Last summer local Chinese Communists brought chaos to Hong Kong with riots and terrorism. But they were unable to get the popular support so their campaign fizzled in the face of British firmness.

The critical time will now come when schools and colleges close for the last summer next month and thousands of students become exploitable by agitators. Informants say Peking agents plan to pay up to $20 a day to rioters.

But better than that—or at least in addition to it—Congress ought to approve the measure which is now before the Senate Commerce Committee to enable the networks to give free time for the joint appearances of the candidates. There is no reason why this shouldn't be as applicable to the pre-convention period as to the election campaign itself.

It seems to me that Kennedy, McCarthy, and Humphrey ought to welcome the opportunity. It would be good for them because it would provide each with a maximum national audience which none would otherwise command. It would be good for the nation's voters because it would give them the chance to see how well the candidates measure up beside each other rather than in isolated appearances.

Surely, if the polls are going to be as influential in the choice of nominees as now seems likely, then the voters in the great majority of states in which none of the candidates will be campaigning need to see them in action. There is no better way to see them and judge them than in joint TV appearances.

If he continues to be a non-candidate, perhaps Governor Rockefeller might hesitate to appear with Nixon. I see more reasons why he should do so than not. He says he wants to expound his views to the nation. He needs to repair the indifferent impression he made at the newspaper editors' meeting in Washington last week. Since he is willing to be drafted, he ought to be willing to be judged alongside the man who is now most favored for the Republican nomination.

I have no doubt that Nixon would accept and if there is a "new" Nixon—as there appeared to be in his virtuoso performance before the same editors—then a joint appearance with Rockefeller would make him increasingly visible.

Television has a special campaign value and it ought to be used imaginatively for the benefit of the voters.

In recent years there has been great enthusiasm about the idea of giving women estrogens during the beginning and end of the change of life. Its advantages have been so extolled in popular magazines that estrogen therapy is now demanded by many women.

These hormones cannot be given promiscuously to women or to men. The cases must be carefully chosen so that the over-use may not produce changes in the rest of the body that are unwanted side effects.

An enormous amount of research is being done on the relationship between male and female sex hormones and arteriosclerosis and the formation of cholesterol. It is generally accepted that the prolonged use of sex hormones should be discouraged.

23 members of first 'delayed vocations' class to be ordained as Catholic priests

WESTON, Mass. (AP) — They once were successful business and professional men in their middle years, but four years ago they gave it all up to enter Pope John XXIII Seminary for delayed vocations.

On May 11, members of the first number class, 23, will have completed their courses and will be ordained to the Roman Catholic priesthood.

They range in age from 32 to 62 and cover many occupations, including a linotypist and a former secretary to House Speaker John W. McCormack.

Walter W. Flaherty, 42, a Bostonian, quit his $12,000-a-year job with McCormack to enter the seminary.

The seminary, the only one in the United States exclusively for men who decided on the priesthood late in life, accepts applicants who are 25 or older. It opened in 1964 and now has 80 men enrolled.

Regardless of his previous occupation, each seminarian washes his own clothes, waits on tables, cares for the grounds and buildings, and takes turns washing dishes. In nearly every case, however, the seminarian's special talents are put to work.

Take the oldest seminarian—Gunnar Haugh, 62. A headmaster in nearby Cambridge for many years, he supervised establishment of the seminary library.

When asked how a man of his age could adjust to the strict discipline of seminary life, Haugh says he had some qualms at first, "but I found that the system here allows us to keep our identity and sense of responsibility. Despite my age, I'm treated no differently than anyone else."

Chosen as rector by the seminary's founder, Richard Cardinal Cushing of Boston, was the Rt. Rev. Msgr. George Schlichte, a Navy man who was ordained in 1959 after attending Annapolis and serving during World War II.

"We have about a 50 per cent drop-out," Msgr. Schlichte said. "There are various reasons, all personal. We had one man stay only one day."

The over-all cost to each student is $2,000 a year, usually provided by the man's local diocese. Msgr. Schlichte said the actual cost per seminarian was $3,200 a year "but we get along through contributions and the grace of God."

The minimum educational requirement for entry is two years of college credits. About the only foreign language taught is Spanish, since Latin was dropped two years ago.

How young they must have been. Those women who started the Jacob Stroud Chapter of the DAR 48 years ago: Mrs. E. H. Wyckoff, Mrs. Nettie Brown, Mrs. Jacob Shaffer, Mrs. Floyd Bachman, M. Forrest Graves and Mrs. John Raimond.

And think how young Mrs. Ida Keller must have been when she joined the Rebekahs 58 years ago. It's interesting to try to imagine the ferment that was going on when many of women's clubs were organized from 1910 to about 1925.

The town was younger then, too, and most of the women had "hired girls" so that they could afford to start their meetings at the lady-like hour of 3 p.m., confident that the children would be welcomed home from school and the dinner started in their absence.

Newspaper reporting was younger, too. Mabel Meyers in her history of the Monroe Council of Republican Women, founded five years after women's suffrage became a fact, quotes the newspaper account of their meeting: "where before the smell of tobacco pervaded the election booths, today the dainty perfumes of milady filled the air with fragrance."

Well, times have changed, and I wonder if the next fifty years will seem to pass as quickly for the Junior Music Club members, the Pocono Band members to be honored at a banquet, even for the Baby's Named today.

And if the reporting of their activities will seem as dated and old fashioned. You'll have to keep track of that for me, I'm afraid.

DAR earns awards on 48th birthday

STROUDSBURG — Jacob Stroud Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution honored its past regents and charter members and was honored by receiving awards at the National Congress on the chapter's 48th birthday this week.

Mrs. E. H. Wyckoff, organizing regent, served from 1920 to 1928. Others regents honored were Mrs. Floyd Bachman, Mrs. Irving W. Foltz, Mrs. T. Manning Curtis, Dr. Edna Rosenkrans, Mrs. Howard R. Flieger Jr. and Mrs. W.E. Andrew. They each received a corsage.

Corsages also went to charter members: Mrs. E.H. Wyckoff, Mrs. Nettie Brown, Mrs. Jacob K. Shaffer, Mrs. Floyd Bachman, Mrs. Forrest Graves and Mrs. John Raimond.

The chapter awards for the year, announced at the Pennsylvania luncheon in Washington, D.C., last week, included a red ribbon for its year book; a certificate of honorable mention for achievement; special recognition for having had the highest net increase in membership of any chapter in Pennsylvania and for reporting the location of burial places of 202 Revolutionary war veterans.

Mrs. Dale Leary was re-elected as regent during the business meeting. Other officers elected were Mrs. Paul Fellecker, first vice regent; Mrs. Robert A. Young, second vice regent; Mrs. Arthur Slec, recording secretary; Mrs. Albert Groner, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Evan Reese, treasurer; Mrs. Horace Fellecker, chaplain; Mrs. Forrest Graves, historian; Mrs. Homer L. Heller, registrar; Mrs. Russell K. Feller, librarian.

The officers were installed by past-regent, Mrs. T. Manning Curtis.

The musical program featured piano duets by Mrs. James Marsh and Mrs. Mary Bachhofer; "The Stars and Stripes Forever"; "Two Guitars" and County Gardens". Mrs. Marsh played three piano solos, "Dorothy" an English folk dance; "Tarentella" a Spanish dance; and "Londonderry Air" and Irish folk song; and "Polonaise" by Chopin.

The program closed with a song fest including "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree"; "While Strolling Through the Park One Day"; and "God Bless America."

Reservations for the historical pilgrimage to Washington's Crossing and Penobscot Manor on May 20 must be sent to Mrs. Evan C. Reese by May 1.

Hostesses for the tea were Mrs. Ross Leader, Mrs. Arlington W. Williams, Mrs. Fred W. Davis, Mrs. Robert Ross and Mrs. Carlyle Huffman.

College dance concert today

EAST STROUDSBURG — The Contemporary Dance Club of East Stroudsburg State College will present its annual concert tonight at 8 p.m. in the College Auditorium.

The program will include a brief demonstration designed to give an insight into dance as an art form, and depict the difference between dance and other forms of movement such as work and sports.

A folk suite, "People to People," gives contemporary treatment to traditional dance materials.

"La Jeune" delineates mood as well as action, the dances being concerned with an episode in a young girl's life and the resulting psychological involvement.

The program, which will travel to Bloomsburg on Friday, May 3, to be performed as part of the Bloomsburg State College Arts Festival, will include a cantata to Beethoven's "Rejoice in the Lamb." This work was premiered by the Dance Club in Belvidere, N. J., on March 3 in a vesper service for the United Presbyterian Church there.

Choreography for the Spring Concert is by the dancers, under the direction of Mrs. Charles Welbers, advisor to the Dance Club and an assistant professor of Health and Physical Education at the College.

Local students performing in the concert are Cynthia Gallagher, freshman, the daughter of Mrs. Loretta Gallagher, 96 West Broad St., East Stroudsburg; Susan Morris, junior, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Morris, 428 Normal St., East Stroudsburg, and Celine Christenson, freshman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Christenson, Seese Hill Road, Canadensis.

The general public is welcome to attend. Tickets are available at the door.

Birds and flowers join Garden Club's spring fling

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Garden Club members seemed to have brought their gardens with them in their "Fling Into Spring" meeting at the YMCA which was transformed by the Spring arrangements.

Mrs. William Dievler coordinated the program which featured colored slides of gardens and of birds. Among the unusual bird slides were those showing fledgling rose-breasted grosbeaks, nesting hummingbirds, Baltimore orioles and many others. She showed them eating state doughnuts and watermelon. Mrs. George T. Walker was chairman of the day.

Mrs. Jacob Z. Hartman presided at the meeting. Hyacinths for fragrance were delivered to members of the Conqueror's Club for Easter. Mrs. William Michelsfelder reported.

Mrs. William Dievler is still working on selling subscriptions for the Purple Martin Capital news and has 10 of the 25 necessary to buy a martin house for Stroudsburg. The East Stroudsburg martin house is already installed but Stroudsburg people are not responding with the same enthusiasm, she reported.

A special conservation ecology display had been arranged by Mrs. Elwood Grant, conservation co-chairman, demonstrating the interrelationship between nature, wild life and man.

One poster showed the houseboat home of a daddily larva; the pupa penthouse of the monarch butterfly; the paper apartments of the wasps; the world through insects' eyes. Another poster had mounted sprays from trees and shrubs in bud with mounted butterflies.

Birds nests
Of unusual interest was a seed museum, and mounted birds nests, authorized by both federal and Pennsylvania state permits. She had collected 18 nests of different birds.

Members exhibiting Spring arrangements included Mrs. James P. Smith, Mrs. A. Starr Phelps, Mrs. Ernest Schwartz, Mrs. Philip Sheaff, Mrs. Frank Ervey, Mrs. Harold L. Gawe, Mrs. Jacob Z. Hartman, Mrs. Mark L. Bristol and Mrs. William G. Dievler.

The tea table centerpiece of Spring flowers and yellow candles was arranged by Mrs. Ervey. On a side table, a nest of Easter egg shells decorated with gold and silver braid and miniature figures formed the background for an arrangement of tulips, forsythia and jonquils by Mrs. Charles Bell.

CANADENSIS — Two women were among those honored by American Legion Evans-Blitz Post 922 at the post's recent 49th anniversary banquet in the Legion home, Canadensis.

Mrs. Fred Kresge, Scotrun, and Mrs. Raymond Jones, Mountainhome, were presented meritorious service awards for "outstanding accomplishments in behalf of servicemen."

Mrs. Kresge, for the past two years, has been mailing magazines and local newspapers to some 40 area servicemen in Vietnam.

In accepting her award from Post Commander George Curnoles, Mt. Pocono, Mrs. Kresge said modestly, "I don't really deserve this."

She said that when her son, Fred Kresge Jr., came for her that evening, she thought he was taking her out in observance of her birthday. She was 76 that day.

Mrs. Jones, president of the post's auxiliary, was cited for "her devotion in assisting area servicemen in local hospitals and in supplying needed ambulance equipment to the community."

She accepted the citation for "all the ladies of the auxiliary."

A 20-year continuous membership pin was awarded to Dr. Harold Tattersall, a Mountainhome physician. Bernard Varvel, a past commander of the post, received a 15-year pin, and a 10-year pin went to Jules Muraro, also a former post commander.

Sworn in as new members of the post were one Korean War Veteran, two veterans of World War II, and eight Vietnam veterans.

Varvel performed the swearing-in ceremonies, assisted by post adjutant Richard Krummell, Canadensis.

Krummell also received a Legion Go-Getters award for signing up 40 new members during the post's recent membership campaign.

A special guest at the banquet was Sp4 Lawrence Cramer, Canadensis, who was on leave from the Army.

competition doesn't mean big money.

"For some reason people complain if they have to pay $10 or $15 for restoration of a book for which they originally paid only $6.50," she says.

"They don't realize that sometimes 15 or 20 hours of labor go into the repair of an older volume."

Mrs. Stern, mother of three and grandmother of ten earned the right to call herself a master bookbinder in her native Germany 35 years ago. She has given new life to books dating back as far as the 15th century.

"Each book is a completely different problem. Books that are brought to me may have been damaged by water, mildew, acid or just may have fallen apart from old age."

"I begin by cutting a book apart and mending each page individually. The seams of the pages are mended with strips of Japan paper. If a book is badly stained it gets a vinegar bath."

Mrs. Stern is also an expert calligrapher and can copy anything from medieval manuscripts to Arabic script.

"This enables her to reproduce a page that may be beyond saving. To 'age' such a page Mrs. Stern may soak it in weak tea or coffee until it acquires the same color as the original."

When a page is badly torn or crumbling with age, she glues French silk chiffon-gossamer evening dress material over the entire surface to hold it together. The silk becomes almost invisible and the page must be held up to the light to detect any evidence of repair.

Mrs. Stern, whose husband Karl is a psychiatrist and author, does most of her work for McGill University's Osler and Redpath libraries and for the renowned Shakespeare collection of Montreal industrialist S. T. Fisher.

Arthur Miller

Individual who changes moods with variety of subjects

NEW YORK (AP) — Depending on the matter under discussion, Arthur Miller these days is vexed, optimistic, enthused.

Displeasure stems from general circumstance: "Given the situation in this country and in this world, you can't help get angry."

Cheer derives from a sense of intense creative impetus: "In many ways this is the best of times for the artist to be alive."

The enthusiasm is his own: "I feel more able to do what I have in mind than I ever have before, and I am more excited about doing it than I ever was."

Suiting deed to words, Miller has just returned to Broadway with a play, "The Price," — about two brothers, suddenly facing up to the costs of failure and success—unlike previous works in two respects. In it, the noted author of "All My Sons" and the Pulitzer Prize-winning "Death of a Salesman," among others, has written his first big comedy role. And, in a switch during the hectic tryout phase, Miller took over in his directing debut.

Loud applause from the critical majority and a rush to the Morosco boxoffice were the silver lining after a clouded start for "The Price."

First, illness forced changes in two of the play's four parts and then Miller took over the directorial chores in the final week of rehearsals.

It was an experience, everything considered, likely to intensify the Miller aversion to the tensions of commercial theatrical enterprise.

Q: Now that you are 52, and 21 years after your first big success, do you find writing easier or more difficult?

A: Well, it gets easier as the years go by. And it gets harder. I've destroyed more plays than most people write. I destroy them for a reason that I think realistic.

I just don't feel I've finished them. If I can't defend something myself, then how can I blame anybody else for not defending it?

If I finally come out with something good, bad or indifferent, at least I feel I've done the best that I can and that it exists.

Q: Do you feel that the theater here and in Europe is in a period of decline or rebirth?

A: I feel that at the moment we could be at a turning point. I think we have about exhausted the novelty of the theater which has no engagement between the audience and what's happening on stage. All the absurd stuff, the black comedy.

It reminds me of the 1930s when there was a thing called the social drama, where you walked in and you knew more or less what was going to happen before it happened.

So many of the plays now are about a man who is inevitably going to slip on a banana peel, and the only tension is the question of the style with which he cracks his skull on the pavement.

I think the drama has got a much wider function than all that; or it should have, and I think it will have.

Q: Some European playwrights are writing about topical problems, but leading authorities in this country haven't. Why is this?

A: In this country we have a difficulty. It's always been assumed that if there is any contemporary relevance in a play that somehow reduces its aesthetic value. So the writers are afraid to do it. In Europe they've got a tradition just the opposite from ours.

The conflict for writers here, that you can't do both at the same time, is absolutely ridiculous. I once read a study of Shakespeare from that point of view and it is quite obvious that the allusions made in his plays, hundreds of them, were to contemporary events and very controversial events.

So the whole dichotomy doesn't exist for me, and it never did. On the other hand, just because a play is about Vietnam or civil rights doesn't make it any more important than a play that isn't about anything contemporary. What gives a play importance is the depth of feeling with which it has been done and the skill with which it has been done.

The best drama deals with questions that are rather immovable—the perennial dilemmas that the human race comes up against from time to time

No hurry in race for independence

PARAMARIBO, Surinam (AP) — This colony is likely to be the next independent nation in South America, but there's no hurry.

"We say here that it would cost just 25 cents to become sovereign," a Surinamer observes. "That's the cost of a letter to Holland asking for it."

All in all, the race to freedom seems to match the comfortable pace of daily living in this area once known as Dutch Guiana.

There have been no disturbances set off by independence-seeking groups. Relations with the Netherlands, which has granted Surinam internal self-rule, are excellent.

The chronic capital shortages besetting emerging nations everywhere and an 11 per cent unemployment rate have cooled demands for immediate independence.

One of the few for independence now is goateed Henk Herrenberg, leader of the small National Republican party which has yet to win a seat in the Staten, the Surinamese parliament.

Herrenberg's ideas, influenced by long visits to Algeria and Cuba, have not caught on. More moderate leaders have prevailed.

Josef A. Penget, prime minister and leader of the dominant National party, says he favors independence but quickly adds it can only follow economic independence.

The Netherlands still must give Surinam straight budgetary support loans as well as aid tied to specific projects. In 1968 Surinam received about $17 million for budget support.

Jagannat Lachmon, chief of the biggest opposition group, the United Welfare party, holds independence "unnecessary" at present.

Political leader receives challenge

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — A friendship turned sour — and the generation gap—have combined to challenge the grip of Luis Munoz Marin on Puerto Rican politics.

From 1940 until 1964, Munoz was the acknowledged leader of this teeming island. In 1964, he stepped out as governor after serving four consecutive terms, but left his trusted aide, Roberto Sanchez Vilella, seated at the governor's desk in La Fortaleza. He also left his hand-tooled Popular Democratic party in tight control of island politics.

Besides winning the governorship for the fifth consecutive time in 1964, the Popular party also has captured every city hall in Puerto Rico's 76 municipalities, and swept the legislature.

Yet within a year after Munoz went into semiretirement his powerful political machine had begun to crack, and the personal relations between veteran party leaders and Gov. Sanchez had begun to chill.

For the change at the governor's desk also meant a change in the palace guard — different aides, younger faces, a "new style".

For a time, Sanchez seemed almost indifferent to the erosion of his party ties. A civil engineer by profession, and a methodical civil servant by instinct, Sanchez remained aloof behind the iron gates of the governor's mansion.

In contrast, the governor's aides proceeded energetically to remake the image of the Popular party. Eventually even Munoz, the party founder and still its revered elder statesman, would publicly complain of the "incredible rudeness" with which the new group behaved.

Basically, the effort to "Demunozize" the government was spawned by the restiveness of the Popular party's youth. Younger members were chafing at the party's refusal to give them more seats in the legislature, and were disillusioned by the party's inability, or unwillingness, to wrest more autonomy from the United States.

From the start of the Sanchez administration, one of the most influential advisers to the 55-year-old governor was Jeanette Ramos, 36. She is an attorney, and the daughter of a deceased speaker of the House of Representatives who had considered himself the proper successor to Munoz as governor.

Jeanette Ramos and the governor were married last September, soon after Sanchez' divorce from his first wife.

A bolder, far more political Sanchez Vilella has blossomed forth. He now shakes hands, jokes, and smiles into cameras. This "new" Sanchez also has shown a willingness to defy the still awesome power of Munoz. Recently, breaking a Popular party ban on campaigning, he announced for re-election as governor.

Car sales speeding to record

NEW YORK (AP) — Automobile salesmen and dealers throughout America are talking up a real spurt in car sales. The increase began early in the first quarter of the year, but took off in the final 10 days of March.

The figures exceed even the estimates of many of the industry's positive thinking forecasters.

First quarter sales of the nation's Big Four automakers totaled more than two million cars despite a sluggish start.

In the March 21-31 period alone, the combined sales of General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors were more than 322,000 cars, a pace that has been bettered only in 1965 and 1966.

In this 10-day period, Americans bought 35,000 cars more than in the same period a year earlier, or about 3,600 cars more a day—this in spite of domestic and international turmoil.

True, some peculiarities must be explained.

Ford, still rebounding from a strike, is providing cars now for many customers who couldn't buy them earlier. And sales incentive contests this year may have added to the bulge.

Still, the spring sales pace of 1968 stands close to the best, exceeded only by 1966 and 1965 when 2.2 million cars were sold in the first quarter. But, when increased purchases of foreign cars are included, Americans are found to be buying at a pace very close to the record.

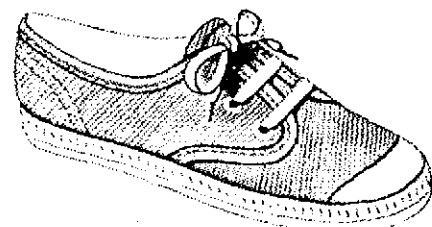

Consider the situation just a couple of years ago. Sales were booming and manufacturers were projecting sales of cars and trucks of about 10.6 million. Henry Ford II foresaw sales in excess of 13 million by 1970. Confidence abounded.

Everything seemed to go sour at once. Safety, an issue that car makers had long pursued—but perhaps dutifully and sometimes ploddingly—suddenly was on everyone's mind. Inflation spread through the economy. Consumer confidence began drying up in the heat of domestic and world tensions.

Car sales slumped beneath estimates. Millions of cars were found to have defects, mostly minor. American Motors got into serious financial trouble.

Police seek man's right identity

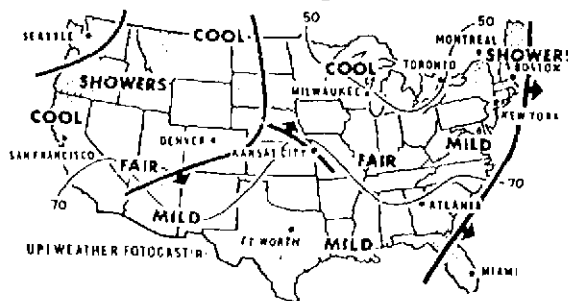

STROUDSBURG — State Police from Stroudsburg really had a problem Wednesday. They were called to investigate a one-car accident at 9:30 a.m. on Interstate Rt. 80 in Pocono Twp. and they found that the driver possessed four different sets of identification.

A man, tentatively identified as William Doramus, 17, of Little Rock, Ark., was traveling east on Rt. 80 when he lost control of his car, sideswiped the embankment on the right side of the highway, spun around and came to a stop facing west.

The man was taken to General Hospital of Monroe County and is being treated for a broken neck, police said.

However, police have a teletype out to Arkansas to learn the true identity of the man and his correct age.

The driver of the car failed to round a curve, ran off the highway, hit a sign, a tree, and a bank before coming to a stop.

The two youths fled the scene. Police estimate total damage at $300.

Hot electrical wires trap man in auto

EAST STROUDSBURG — An East Stroudsburg I.D. 2 man was trapped in his car for 30 minutes early Wednesday with hot electrical wires draped over his vehicle.

Jere R. Hoover was forced to sit tight while workmen removed the wires which fell after an auto driven by another man sheared off a utility pole.

East Stroudsburg police said that at 1:57 a.m., Gerald P. Possinger, 19, of 137 King St., Stroudsburg, was traveling at a high rate of speed when he lost control of his vehicle on N. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg, and hit the pole.

The accident left homes in the area without power for several hours and also knocked out the fire alarm system and a television cable.

Police said Possinger will be charged with reckless driving and consuming intoxicating beverage while being under the legal age of 21.

Traffic was blocked between Barson St. and Maple Ave. for more than two hours while workers cleared the area during a rainstorm.

Possinger was taken to the General Hospital of Monroe County where he was reportedly treated for a broken nose and then released.

Police estimated total damage to be more than $2,000.

Bishop sounds warning

BUCK HILL FALLS — "To preach the gospel to a hungry man without giving him food is both futile and cruel," the Rev. Dr. Eugene C. Blake, a Methodist bishop, said here Wednesday night as he addressed the opening session of the annual meeting of the U. S. Conference for the World Council of Churches.

Some 200 church leaders are attending the meeting here which ends Friday. The Rev. Ben M. Herbst, vice chairman of the United States Conference for W.C.C. and president of the United Church of Christ, is presiding.

Rebellious narcotics addicts 'tune in, turn on, drop out'

By PETE GRADY

Pocono Record Reporter
STROUDSBURG — Drug experts drew a vicious circle of drug abuse and dependency, from L.S.D. to glue sniffing, during Wednesday's drug seminar at East Stroudsburg State College.

"We live in a drug orientated society. Drugs can be used as an expression of rebellion to 'tune in, turn on, drop out,'" said Dr. Henry J. Anlage, associate director of clinical services at Smith, Kline and French Laboratories, Philadelphia.

Dr. Anlage was a keynote speaker at the seminar which was sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Public Instruction for high school and college administrators and instructors.

Can drug dependence be cured, Dr. Anlage asked the more than 200 persons who attended the seminar.

"The best answer is a qualified yes. Cures are achieved but the relapse rate is high. If total abstinence is a goal, cure rate will be very very low. What is required for cure is a complete overhaul in the person's attitudes towards life," the doctor answered.

Dr. Anlage said something could be done about the drug abuse problem. "Obtain sound, correct information from reliable sources," he advised.

"Communicate this information without hysteria and without preaching. Encourage introduction of information about the use and abuse of drugs into school curriculums in your area."

"Cooperate with law enforcement agencies in curbing the illicit traffic in drugs, treat drugs with respect. Do not exchange drugs with friends or relatives. Do not ask pharmacists or physicians to violate the laws concerning distribution of sale of drugs."

Three excellent films on drug abuse highlighted the seminar's afternoon session.

The first film, "Youth In A Fix," gave the audience a bleak but revealing tour of drug and alcoholic haunts in Greenwich Village and The Bowery in New York City.

Rev. Frank M. Reynolds, superintendent, Teen Challenge Training Center, Rohrerburg, Pa., commented on the film as it glimpsed a young girl in a Village haunt who said that "free love was beautiful."

"Three months after we interviewed this girl her body was found floating in the East River," Rev. Reynolds said.

As a Negro pumped Heroin into his vein Rev. Reynolds asked what is the cure and answered immediately, "Prevention, that's the cure."

The second film, "LSD," revealed the sheer lunacy of even contemplating "a trip."

A Navy doctor talked for 28 minutes on the effects of an LSD trip.

P.M. budget $1.9 million

SWIFTWATER — The Pocono Mountain School Board Wednesday night voted to tentatively adopt a record budget of nearly $2 million for the 1968-69 school year with a tax hike of two mills — from 37 to 39 — to raise the $157,335 in spending over last year.

The per capita tax of $10 and the real estate transfer tax of one per cent will be retained.

The proposed budget of $1,996,636 represents an increase of nine per cent over last year and school authorities anticipate that a substantial part of it will be funded by the increase in the assessment of real estate values for 1968.

This valuation will jump from $33,229,750 last year to a new high of $35,515,150.

After a brief discussion of the proposed income tax considered by Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg school districts, members of the board agreed that such a tax would be studied but not considered this year.

Estimated revenue to the district for the coming year is $1,475,636 from local sources, including $1,315,848 from real estate taxes; $330,000 from state funds, and $90,000 derived from impacted area payments by the federal government.

Dr. William Nye, superintendent of schools, said that the budget increase was due to three factors:

— Rising costs of school supplies, materials and equipment.

— Mandated and district salary increments.

— Additional staffing to meet expanded curricular offerings, and increased enrollment.

Theodore Jarrett, president of the Pocono Mountain Teachers' Association, asked to speak to the board.

Jarrett asked what provisions had been made for health and life insurance benefits in the new budget, and said that teachers were losing increments this year "at the top level."

After a brief debate about how these added requests of the teachers would affect the budget, board president James Price recessed the meeting for immediate consideration of the problem by the policy committee.

Committee chairman John Montgomery then barred newsmen from the meeting of the committee and the teacher delegation.

After a half-hour meeting, the board of education then went into executive session, before again opening the meeting to the press.

In their open meeting, members voted to grant an across-the-board increase of $300 to all teachers for 1968-69, with the following maximum salaries:

— $8,400 — state certificate holders.

— $9,300 — teachers with bachelor's degrees.

— $9,900 — teachers with master's degrees.

James Price, board president, said the policy committee will meet to consider teachers' requests for fringe benefits, but promised that consideration will not apply to the coming year.

The above salary schedules and fringe-benefit policy was passed by the board with John Montgomery abstaining from the voting.

In other business, the board voted to accept the following bids:

For elementary art supplies — M. A. Bruder Co., for $91; Garrett Buchanan Co., $790; Geo-Optic and Paper Co., $45; Phillips Supply Co., $879. Total bids — $1,807.

E-burg school board drops income tax

EAST STROUDSBURG — The president of the East Stroudsburg School Board Wednesday said that the board will not enact a one per cent earned income tax.

Irving Sommer said the board felt that its proposed share of the wage tax, 60 per cent would not bring in sufficient revenue to justify the levy of the tax.

East Stroudsburg Borough Council and the five townships in the school district had proposed to take an across-the-board 10 per cent share of the tax.

It now appears that both Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg school boards have discarded the wage tax in favor of an increase in occupational assessment tax and the real estate tax.

It has been reported from more than one board member on both boards that Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg councils and Stroud Twp. supervisors were taking an unrealistic and unfair attitude in taking a hefty share of the tax.

Certain school directors feel that both borough councils should have allowed the two school districts to take the full one per cent of the wage tax, at least for the first year of the enactment.

The cry raised from both school boards is: "Which is more important? The best possible education for a child or the improvement of a borough street?"

The East Stroudsburg board has advised the East Stroudsburg Borough Council and the five township supervisors boards by letter that the school board will not enact the wage tax.

Peterson criticizes sanctions

EAST STROUDSBURG — The East Stroudsburg Area school superintendent Wednesday blasted the Pennsylvania State Education Association's charge that the state is not a desirable place in which to teach.

The PSEA has invoked sanctions because Gov. Raymond Shady and the legislature failed to implement sound subsidy bills and salaries.

"Educators who accept positions in Pennsylvania schools while state sanctions are in effect will be in violation of the Code of Ethics of the Education Profession," the PSEA said in a letter to school educators.

Mrs. Pauline Peterson, East Stroudsburg area school superintendent, replied, "I shall hire teachers as long as I'm school superintendent."

During a special board meeting in the high school library, the board discussed a plan to move seventh grade pupils from the high school to two classrooms for handicapped children in the J.S. Bunnell elementary school.

Cummings Platt, assistant high school principal, told the board that due to overcrowded conditions in the high school additional classroom space in the district must be obtained.

In other action, the board hired Mrs. Lucille Miller, secondary special education teacher at a salary of $8,000 for the 1968-1969 school term.

Hired Margaret Laubner elementary guidance counselor on an 11-month contract. Her salary to be set after teacher negotiations and legislative action have been determined in Harrisburg.

Hired Mrs. Beverly Anne Handberg, Spanish teacher, at $5,300 and Edward Robert Arner, physics teacher, at $5,300. Arner will replace Grant Bartholomew who will retire in June after teaching 32 years, 13 years in East Stroudsburg.

Accepted with regret the resignation of Mrs. Truly Platt for maternity reasons.

Hired Mrs. Cecelia Pavleski and Mrs. Daisy Hines as part-time janitresses in the Junior-Senior high school at $1.60 per hour for four hours a day.

Planners eye revision in S-burg

STROUDSBURG — The Stroudsburg Planning and Zoning Commission discussed and studied a revision of zoning area under the Comprehensive Land Use Plan and the establishment of priorities for several planning programs during a meeting held Wednesday night in the municipal building.

The Commission will recommend to the borough council a revision of zoning area extending between N. Fifth and N. Ninth Streets, and Monroe and Sarah Streets to allow for limited commercial, governmental or office use, and for special or appropriate public uses.

Also, to delete "printing and publishing" among the limited commercial uses listed.

The Commission also discussed a proposed plan for setting of priorities for renewal and other planning proposals to be referred to the borough council. This would call for immediate action within a year of certain plans under the 20 years Comprehensive Land Use Plan.

Several proposed plans for the new courthouse complex were reviewed which will be considered under the second phase of the Space Analysis Survey during a joint meeting of the county commissioners, the borough council and the planning commission.

P.M. airport receives grant of $17,400

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Pocono Mountain Airport has received a $17,400 federal grant to remove obstructions to the landing strip.

The grants were made by the Federal Aviation Agency and totaled $500,000 for improvements at two other area airports also.

Titling his speech as "Critical Decisions," Dr. Reed will address his talk to the importance of students investigating all of the aspects of a career.

Thieves take $26 from area garage

MOUNT POCONO — Burglars entered a Mount Pocono service station sometime early Wednesday and made off with $26 in cash, Mount Pocono Borough Police said Wednesday night.

Police said entry was gained by breaking a small window on the side of the building then making way to the office area and prying open a cigarette machine. The station is just north of the intersection of Routes 940 and 611.

Approximately $22 was taken from the machine.

Golf tournament starts today

Nelson Classic draws stars

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — What may be the greatest gathering of big name golfers—many of them coming to pay tribute to one of their own—will move out today in the opening round of the $100,000 Byron Nelson Classic.

A limping Arnold Palmer, the greatest money-winner of all time, will play despite a painful hip injury. It's all because of Nelson, the fabled Texas golf great of the forties, who is being honored by having the tournament named for him and who was given a $25 a plate testimonial dinner.

Eleven of the twelve top money winners of golf history, led by the great Palmer, with Billy Casper No. 2 are in the field. The missing one is Tony Lema, killed in a plane crash last year.

The 13th, Ben Hogan, had to withdraw because of an injured knee, but the 14th and 15th are here—Bob Gahby and Don January.

There are 74 players who have won PGA tournaments and Jack Tunhill, PGA tournament director, said no other tournament could make that statement.

There are more than 550 from the top 50 money-winners of the year. But Casper is the only tournament winner this year since George Knudson had to return to Canada under his visa.

Which shows how wide open things will be when the field of 156 starts hammering at Preston Trail Course with its 7,966 wind-swept yards.

Gary Player, one of the big names in the field, said it was one of the toughest golf courses he ever had played.

January, who is a Dallas resident and has played the Preston Trail course, was being eyed as a favorite for the $20,000 first money. January has just finished making a run for it in the Masters and then winning the Tournament of Champions.

Springtime heroes hit slump

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Wynn, the man who hit 37 homers and knocked in 107 runs last year, is riding the bench at Houston. Tommie Agee, the man the New York Mets had to have, is sitting with an 0 for 26 streak and a .119 batting average.

Deron Johnson, supposed to solve Atlanta's first base problems, is hitting only .114 and Tommie Aaron is playing the bag. Bob Bailey is watching while Luis Alcazar holds down third base for the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The vagaries of early spring find a proven hitter like Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh trudging along at .150 and Sandy Valdespino, a .165 hitter last year, slugging at a .387 clip for Atlanta.

Averages including Tuesday's games show Willie Mays is bouncing back strong at .341 but Roberto Clemente, the defending batting champ, is way down yonder at .231. Triple Crown winner Carl Yastrzemski of Boston is averaging only .257 but he has four homers and seven runs batted in. Frank Robinson of Baltimore, the 1966 Triple Crown winner, is out with the mumps.

Gil Hodges, the manager of the Mets, has been resting Agee in the last three games. He expects to return the ex-White Sox outfielder to the lineup Friday night in Cincinnati. Ironically, Don Bosch, who flopped last year, has been playing center for Agee.

Wynn moved out of his old center field job in Houston to make room for Ron Davis, took extra batting practice Tuesday at Shea Stadium from Harry Walker, the Astros' special hitting instructor. Wynn has only three hits, all singles, in 35 trips, only one RBI and is hitting .086.

Among the more startling statistics is a little item in the Houston figures. The Astros' catchers have thrown out only one base-stealer in 15 attempts. Obviously, the runners have been giving rookie Hal King a bad time.

Grady Hatton, Houston manager, switched to John Bateman against the Mets. There were five stolen bases against the Astros in one game but then there were five against Boston the other day when Gene Oliver was catching.

Briton scores tennis upset

BOURNEMOUTH, England (AP) — Mark Cox, a 24-year-old British amateur, scored the first major upset over a professional in an open tennis tournament by beating Pancho Gonzalez of Los Angeles, Wednesday.

A crowd of 2,000 saw the left-hander break the 40-year-old Gonzalez' service in the final game of a 2½ hour match for a 6-6, 6-2, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3 victory in the second round of the British hard-court championship.

The tournament is the first permitting amateurs to compete against professionals.

Gonzalez, one of the six stars in George MacCall's troupe competing here, was not the only pro to run into trouble against mediocre opposition.

Australian Fred Stolle had to rally to overcome Britain's Keith Wooldridge.

Cards crush Reds, 7-0

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Hot-hitting Curt Flood drove in five runs with a triple and two singles Wednesday night as the St. Louis Cardinals whipped Cincinnati 7-0 behind Ray Washburn's five-hit pitching.

Washburn breezed to his second victory without a loss after Mike Shannon's third homer touched off a three-run St. Louis burst in the second inning against Reds right-hander John Taitouris.

Taitouris, who went into the game with an 8-3 career record against the Cards, then walked Julian Javier and Washburn before Flood, the National League's leading hitter, sent both home with a single.

The Cardinals added a run off reliever Bill Kelso in the fifth on Roger Maris' triple and Orlando Cepeda's sacrifice fly.

In the sixth, Flood's second single drove in Javier, who led off with a single and took second on a throwing error by shortstop Leo Cardenas. Dal Maxvill's infield hit, a walk and Flood's triple to left center completed the assault in the eighth.

Two six-team divisions set for AL

CHICAGO (AP) — The American League, which got a 1969 major league expansion jump on the National League, meets Thursday, apparently to set up two six-team divisions for next year.

Last November, the American League voted to expand to 12 teams in 1969, adding as new members Seattle and Kansas City after approving the shift of Charles O. Finley's Athletics from Kansas City to Oakland this year.

Like the American League, the National circuit plans to handle a 12-club lineup on an east-west divisional basis. Order of preference for selection of the two new NL clubs reportedly is San Diego, Buffalo, Dallas-Fort Worth, Montreal and Milwaukee.

A divisional setup means a playoff for the league championship and right to face the National League champion in the World Series.

IOC feared violence with South Africa in Olympics

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — Avery Brundage confirmed Wednesday that South Africa is out of the Mexico City Olympics.

The American president of the International Olympic Committee said there were more than enough votes to keep South African athletes home.

And, in a statement, he said the IOC's executive board had feared there were would be "actual danger if a South African team appeared at the Games."

Brundage said that with 54 of the 71 votes cast, 41 IOC members had approved the board's recommendation to withdraw the invitation to South Africa to participate in the Oct. 12-27 Games. Thirteen members voted in favor of South Africa.

Only a simple majority of 36 votes was required to bar South Africa.

South Africa, barred from the Olympics in 1963 for its racial segregation policies, was reinstated when the nation's Olympic Committee pledged to send a multiracial team to the 1968 Olympics. This was done in a mail vote of the IOC and announced at the Winter Olympics in Grenoble, France, nearly eight weeks ago.

A storm of protest followed. More than 40 nations, most of them from Africa, said they would boycott the games. Other nations, including the Soviet Union, indicated they would, too, if South Africa competed.

Faced with a disaster to its multimillion-dollar production, Mexico City's organizing committee requested and got a special meeting of the IOC's executive board last weekend.

The board then unanimously recommended that the invitation be withdrawn and called for another vote of the IOC.

Once the executive board made its recommendation the result never was in doubt.

Hargan one-hits Detroit

CLEVELAND (AP) — Steve Hargan shut out Detroit 2-0 Wednesday night on one hit as the Cleveland Indians ended the Tigers' nine-game winning string.

Hargan and Joe Spurna waged a tight pitching duel in windy, 36-degree weather, and the only run of the first six innings came on a throwing error by second baseman Dick McAuliffe in the second inning.

Hargan himself scored the Tribe's second run after getting a triple as a result of a collision in short left field between Willie Horton and Ray Oyler. Horton was carried off the field on a stretcher. First reports said that Horton suffered a concussion.

Jim Northrup, who singled leading off the third inning, was the only Tiger runner to get on base until McAuliffe walked to lead off the seventh.

A pickoff play and a double play erased these two runners and in the other five innings Hargan put the Tigers down 1-2-3, striking out seven.

Wrestling expert to speak at ESSC

EAST STROUDSBURG — Don Sayenga, the noted writer of articles on wrestling, will be the featured speaker for the annual banquet to honor the wrestlers of East Stroudsburg State College.

The affair will be held at the East Stroudsburg Holiday Inn Friday, April 26, at 7 p.m.

Clyde Wilman, coach of the successful wrestling squads of ESSC, said that Sayenga is currently compiling his articles on wrestling into a book and it will be the most comprehensive history of wrestling ever written.

Sayenga, a graduate of Lafayette College where he was a successful wrestler, including the heavyweight championship of the Mid-Atlantic Conference, is still actively associated with amateur wrestling as a member of the Allentown YMCA squad.

A resident of Center Valley, Sayenga is an executive with the Bethlehem Steel Co.

Lakers top Celtics to tie series

BOSTON (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers led by old pros Jerry West and Elgin Baylor, got help from unheralded Tom Hawkins and overpowered the Boston Celtics 123-113 Wednesday night, squaring their showdown for the National Basketball Association championship.

The victory sent the Lakers home all even with the third game of the best-of-7 series set for Los Angeles Friday night.

West contributed 23, while Baylor contributed 23, while Hawkins, coming through in the clutch, hit for 19.

Los Angeles nailed down the decision with an outburst early in the third period. The Lakers tallied 11 straight points to take a commanding 73-60 lead in the decisive explosion. The Celtics never got closer than seven points the rest of the way.

U of C names Negro coach

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Racial strife among University of California athletes led Wednesday to appointment of a new head basketball coach who is popular with Negroes and a Negro coach as his assistant.

Berkeley Chancellor Roger Heyns announced elevation of freshman coach Jim Padgett, 37, to head coach, succeeding Rene Herrerias, and named Earl Robinson, 31, as assistant.

Robinson, former baseball and basketball star at Cal, will be the first Negro on the coaching staff since 1943. Walter Gordon, now a federal judge in the Virgin Islands, was an assistant football coach for 24 years, 1919-1943.

Still to be chosen is a new athletic director to replace Pete Newell, who resigned in the aftermath to last January's revolt by Negro athletes.

Illness no handicap

LAS VEGAS — The first thing we have to understand is, the best round of golf I ever shot in my life was once when I had a nosebleed.

First of all, this causes you to keep your head still. Second, your score is the least of your worries. I was much more worried about getting blood on my slacks than bogies on my scorecard.

Conversely, one of the worst rounds I ever shot was once when I was fairly bursting with health. I didn't even have a hangover, my pulse was a nice steady 90, blood pressure normal, my ears weren't ringing, I didn't have the gout and my glasses were clean. As a result, I flew four balls out of bounds, left seven in sand-traps, and knocked chip shots over five greens.

I bring this up because golf is a game where it pays to be an invalid. If a guy wakes up on the morning of a final round feeling good, he should pay somebody to hit him over the head with a hammer. He should go out of his way to eat something that disagrees with him. He should expose himself to the measles, stand in a draft, or eat some oysters that have been left out in the sun for a week.

Don January got a $30,000 case of pneumonia up here this week. He went to dinner Friday night in a serene frame of mind. The night-club was crowded with golfers. But all of them got a lousy break except January. Their steak was cooked to perfection, their potatoes were resting amiably in their tinfoil, their lettuce was scrubbed clean of bugs.

Eating hoary
January was tied for the lead in the tournament with Dan Sikes at that time, and he knocked over a whiskey and water and cut into his food with abandon. He looked with interest at the undressed cuties on the stage, as he chewed on his steak and washed it down with a couple of hunks of salad and a red wine.

It was at two o'clock that morning that he started to win the championship. At that hour, he was in the warm embrace of a porcelain basin, bogeying his lunch, and, shortly, his dinner.

If the rest of the field had known what they were doing, they might have summoned the head waiter and told him "Take

Kulp possible Lehigh starter

BETHLEHEM — Six Lehigh University trackmen will compete in the annual Penn Relays Friday and Saturday at the University of Pennsylvania.

Coach John Covert of the Engineers will have a distance medley relay team including Joe Maresca of New Hyde Park, N. Y., captain Jimmy Miller of York, Steve Haas of Massillon, O., and Ed Carney of White Plains, N. Y.

Maresca and Miller also will compete on a mile relay team with Fred Zellner of Riverside, Conn., and either Bill Lora of Findlay, O., or George Kulp of East Stroudsburg.

Zellner also is entered in the 440-yard intermediate hurdles and Al Banes of McKeesport, co-holder of Lehigh's pole vault mark, is a possible entry in that event.

this steak back and don't bring it to the table 'til it's undercooked." Or, "Here my good man, tell the chef to take this salad and run through it barefooted a few times." Or, "Are you sure this butter is rancid?"

Don January got so sick, if the gamblers had known about it, they would have made him a prohibitive favorite. He was the only guy in the tournament whose face was so green he looked like a walking stained glass window. He was so sick at the first tee, all you could see was the whites of his eyes. He knocked his first shot so far out of bounds it appeared on the radar screen of three passing airliners.

January promptly stopped worrying about the Tournament of Champions at the Stardust and began worrying what the PGA record was for retching. He was the only guy in the history of the tournament who really needed a silver cup when he finished the round. He was also the only guy in the history of the tournament who kept going behind trees even when his shots didn't.

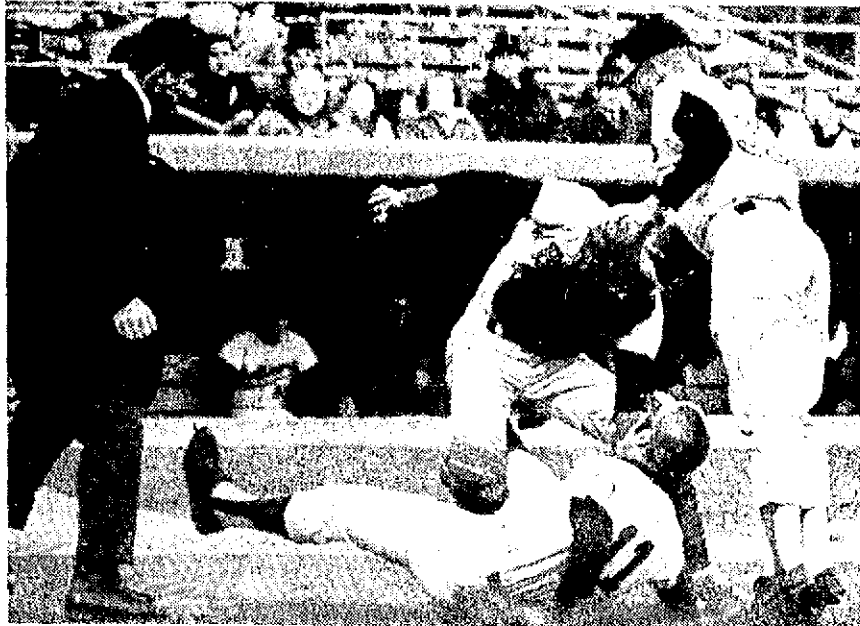

Behind him, Julius Boros and Bob Goalby never felt better. Their breakfasts were resting easily on their stomachs, their heads felt clear, they didn't have to clap their hands over their mouths whenever they spotted somebody eating an ice cream stick or stopping mustard on a hot dog. January kept shooting birdies because he was in a hurry to get to the next sanitary facility. He shot two 69s in two days and won the tournament because he was, you might say, a hungry player.

Botulism might now become as important as a straight left arm to birdie golf, because Boros, Goalby and young Randy Glover, trailing January, had waffles and poached eggs and second cups of coffee going for them, while Don even flinched at orange juice. But it is a fact that golf seems to be best played by the lame, the halt, or those with gas on the stomach. You sometimes get the impression that the surest way to the Vardon Trophy is leprosy — or at least bubonic plague — because, who can forget Ben Hogan coming back from death's door to three National Opens with legs so bandaged he had to walk like a man on stilts?

Or Ken Venturi winning an Open once with such an advanced case of heat prostration that they thought he was going to have to make his last putt from an oxygen tent?

Don January, who led or tied for the lead in every one of his past five tournaments, won only the one where he needed a stomach pump more than a sandwich. He may now go around making sure his mixed shrimp newburg is made with unpasteurized milk, or he may tell the waiter, "be sure this fish was caught last week and lay on the wharf in a heat wave," or "Don't cook the pork more than five seconds on each side, I want to be sure the trichinosis is alive."

He might also try drinking root beer with trout, or putting ketchup on hot fudge sundaes, or getting a ready list of all the contaminated tuna canneries, and dining out on the eve of the final round only in places condemned by the Board of Health, and having water shipped in from Tijuana.

Twins' Ted Uhlaender (11) is pinned to the ground by Orioles' catcher Elrod Hendricks as Uhlaender tried to score from 3rd on a wild pitch by Orioles' pitcher Eddie Watt (39) during the 6th inning of the Minnesota-Baltimore game. Uhlaender was called out by plate umpire Russell Goetz (left). Orioles won, 7 to 3.

Hardin stars in Birds' win

ST. PAUL—MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Pitcher Jim Hardin tripped home two runs in the sixth inning to break a tie but needed relief help from Eddie Watt to give Baltimore a 7-3 victory over Minnesota Wednesday.

Watt relieved in the last of the sixth and got the Orioles out of a bases-loaded jam by uncorking what would have been a wild pitch had it not been for a lucky bounce.

Watt's 2-2 pitch to Cesar Tovar with two out sailed over Tovar to the backstop. The Twins' Ted Uhlaender appeared to be able to score easily from third, but the ball took a hard bounce off the backstop right to catcher Elrod Hendricks who had an easy putout.

The Twins could mount nothing serious against Watt the rest of the way as he protected Hardin's second victory.

Baltimore tore into Dean Chance for seven hits and six of its runs in the first six innings, the Oriole attack against the Twins' 20-game winner of 1967 being capped by Hardin's triple. Hardin's blow scored Hendricks, who had drawn a walk with two out, and Mark Belanger, who singled.

Promoter cancels fight

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Promoter Herman Taylor Wednesday canceled a scheduled 10 round fight tonight between Philadelphia's Gypsy Joe Harris and Manny Gonzalez of Odessa, Tex.

Taylor made the move after Harris' personal physician Dr. Jack Weinstein, advised Taylor the Philadelphia fighter, unbeaten in 24 bouts was suffering an ear infection and tonsillitis.

It was the second time the bout was postponed. The two had been scheduled for 10 rounds on March 20, but that fight was called off when Harris pled a respiratory infection.

Taylor had hoped to match the winner against New York's Emil Griffith, with the winner of that bout getting a crack at middle-weight champ Nina Benvenuti of Italy.

Harris and Gonzalez, who holds a 43-16-6 record, were both examined by Pennsylvania Athletic Commission doctors Monday and were pronounced physically fit to go into the ring.

Opening lead—four of hearts. The most difficult hands to judge during the bidding are those where both sides compete up to a high level and there is some doubt about whether or not the opponents have gone past their limit. In general, and especially where a slam is involved, it pays to bid one more when in doubt. If it turns out you are wrong, you suffer a small loss, but if you are right, you escape a huge one. Experience and good judgment are helpful in these situations, but no one should expect to guess them right all the time. Consider this hand from the finals of the 1965 Vanderbilt team of four championships. Neither side could know with certainty how high to go. Once the bidding had reached the five level, it became a guessing contest, and no one at the table could be sure how the adverse cards were divided or how many tricks could be taken either offensively or defensively. Ultimately, North-South played the hand at six spades doubled, and since their hearts were divided 3-1 and their clubs 2-0, they had no trouble making the slam for a score of 1,660 points. East-West were obviously wrong to sell out to six spades, since they could have gone on to seven clubs (down two) and escaped for a small minus instead of the huge one they suffered. The hand was doubly expensive because it eventually determined the championship. At the second table, North-South stopped at five spades and made six for a score of 680 joints. Had the East-West pair at the first table either passed five spades or gone on to seven clubs, they would have won the championship instead of losing it.

It makes time
other small cars shouldn't make.

Where traffic's heavy but rolling, and trucks are throwing their weight around, it's not the ideal place for small cars to make time.
But the SAAB 900 is no ordinary small car. It is out of the ordinary because it has front-wheel drive. So it doesn't push you around like others do. It pulls you around corners, curves, and other drivers' mistakes (Most ordinary small cars don't give, even as options, all the standard SAAB safety features.)
As an optional extra, our new V-4 engine has a LIFETIME GUARANTEE.
You can drive it like a big car.

Harris Survey

Reshuffling of presidential battle alters popular standing of political opponents

By LOUIS HARRIS

The wholesale reshuffle of the 1968 Presidential contest has considerably altered the popular standings of all of the men who appear to be left in the running.

On the Democratic side:

—Sen. Robert Kennedy is now the frontrunner and leads both Vice President Hubert Humphrey and Sen. Eugene McCarthy among Democrats. Yet Kennedy's current total of 37 per cent among the rank and file of his party is actually two points below the 39 per cent recorded when he was pitted against President Johnson before the latter's withdrawal. What is more, a definite firming up of opposition to Kennedy appears to be taking place, particularly among older voters, those who live in the South and among the more affluent segment of the electorate.

Kennedy now is being judged on a much different basis. Prior to Mr. Johnson's withdrawal, the New York senator was viewed mainly as the man most likely to stop the incumbent President. Now people are thinking out loud about whether they really want a controversial man like Robert Kennedy as the man to occupy the White House.

—Vice President Humphrey, with 24 per cent, has yet to coalesce his full support, since up to the time of this survey many Americans were not sure he was going to make the run. Humphrey is the most likely recipient of the residue of Johnson support, particularly among older men and women who live in small towns. In his own right, the Minnesotan has a reservoir of support from the Midwest among voters who still have enough suspicion of the Old Establishment left to distrust the rich and privileged with old-time populist fervor.

But now Humphrey is also receiving a new source of support from people who view him as the most likely man to stop Bobby Kennedy, much as Kennedy was viewed as the most likely to stop President Johnson. This fact accounts for a rise in Humphrey support in the South and among the higher-income and better-educated voters.

—The sharpest movement upward since the Johnson withdrawal has taken place in support for Sen. McCarthy. Against both Mr. Johnson and Sen. Kennedy, he drew only a 13 per cent backing among Democrats. Now he has risen to 22 per cent, which still places him in third position, but much closer to his two opponents than before. McCarthy has almost doubled his backing from the college-educated and now leads both Kennedy and Humphrey in this group. He is also closing the margin Kennedy had on him among voters under 30.

McCarthy excites the affluent and the young, but has yet to communicate with the mass of Democrats. In many ways he is reminiscent of Adlai Stevenson, who proved in 1952 and in 1956 that it is possible to win the nomination of the Democratic Party without appealing to the masses of the party rank and file. But Stevenson also failed to deliver these groups in majorities sufficient enough to elect him over President Dwight Eisenhower. Nonetheless, McCarthy's unemotional style has made him the least controversial of the leading Democrats.

On the Republican side:

—Former Vice President Richard Nixon now appears to have a worse problem than ever in proving that he has shaken the "loser's image," a view held by 55 per cent of the electorate. At the moment, Nixon is running behind all three leading Democratic contenders. His real problem is that at a time when the Democrats appear to be coming up with new faces, Nixon is cast by many voters in the role of belonging to two eras of the past: the Eisenhower and Kennedy years.

President Johnson withdrew at just the moment when Richard Nixon showed some signs of catching the man in the White House. Now as voters become accustomed to the fact that a Johnson-Nixon-Wallace race is an improbability, there appears to be an inclination on the part of many to see the slate slate wiped clean and new figures nominated by both parties.

With Nixon's decline, it might have been expected that the stock of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York would rise. Yet this has not yet happened. The main reason appears to be public uncertainty over whether Rockefeller really wants to join the fray.

Now that the New York governor is beginning to speak out on the issues and appears to be mobilizing a campaign organization, perhaps he will show some movement in the polls. But in two pairings since Mr. Johnson's withdrawal, Rockefeller has run a full nine points behind Kennedy.

Major slippage for Rockefeller can be observed among young people, the affluent and Negroes. He has only picked up among voters over 50, a Kennedy weakness. With voters under 30 and Negroes, Rockefeller will be trying to penetrate normal areas of Kennedy strength.

But with the affluent,

Rockefeller's falloff is in an area of Kennedy weakness. This means that the better-educated have decided to wait out the New York governor to see if he really wants the nomination badly enough and also to weigh his views as he states where he stands.

In this strangest of all political years, when it suddenly appears that four years of events are being telescoped into one, change is very much the order of the day.

Ann Landers

Readers are asking...

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been married for nearly 32 years. We never had any children but we have several nieces and nephews.

The nieces are crazy about Ralph and they come over often. Three of these girls are teen-agers. They hop on Uncle Ralph's lap, dance with him and sit close to him on the bench when he plays ragtime jazz on the piano. He loves every minute of it.

One of the nieces announced yesterday, "I'm going to marry a man just like Uncle Ralph." I think such talk is indecent. I told Ralph to cut out the nonsense and that I am sick of seeing him act like a fool. What do you have to say on the subject?

DON'T NEED TROUBLE
Dear Don't: I see nothing indecent about young girls being friendly and affectionate with their uncle — especially in a group. If this is an example of the way your mind works, you'd better stay away from your nephews.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I were married at a small family wedding. I knew I was pregnant at the time, and figured I was about three months along. As it turned out, I was in my fifth month. We left the city shortly after the wedding and now we live about 600 miles away from our families. My mother knows I am pregnant but she has no idea how pregnant I am.

The baby is due in about two weeks and I am undecided as to whether I should notify our parents when the baby arrives or wait a few months. What is your advice?

INFANTICULATING
Dear In: Notify your parents when the baby arrives. It is unrealistic to think you can keep an event like this a secret. If you attempt to top off five months from the baby's age when you take him home, or when someone comes to visit, you will make a fool of yourself.

Confidential to Need To Find The Right Words: You've found the right words, but you're telling them to the wrong person. Your daughter is a spoiled, selfish gimmee and an accomplished moocher—the result of 24 years of practice. Tell her she must pay her own bill and solve her own problems.

What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits — the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-age Sex — Ten Ways To Cool It." Send 50¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

How fast should a teen-age couple go? Can necking be safe? When does it become too hot to handle? Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking And Petting — What Are The Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers in care of The Pocono Record enclosing 50¢ in coin in a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

"The Bride's Guide." Ann Landers' booklet, answers some of the most frequently asked questions about weddings. To receive your copy of this comprehensive guide, write to Ann Landers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35-cents in coin.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Spring arrives

Poconos preparing for biggest season in history

STROUDSBURG — Spring is bustlin' out all over the Pocono Mountains.

The trees are returning to their former beauty; the hillsides are gleaming with artistic lines; the air is circulating with all of its healthful meaning; and the resorts — hotels — motels attractions — restaurants are blaring the notes "Spring is here and summer is coming fast to the Pocono Mountains."

The more than 35 first-class golf courses in the Poconos are trimmed and cultivated in readiness for the biggest year on the history of links play in the Poconos.

From the duffer right to the professional, fairways and greens are available for the thousands who will use the best courses in the East during the spring, summer and fall seasons.

Hard at work

The Poconos resort owners, attraction proprietors and restaurant operators have been preparing for the spring and summer holiday and vacation seasons the past six weeks.

More than four million dollars have gone into renovations and refurbishings in the more than 260 resorts in the Pocono Mountains region, covering Wayne, Pike, Carbon and Monroe counties in Northeastern Pennsylvania.

Last year nearly $80 million of business was done in the Pocono Mountains region. The Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, the voice of the resort industry in Northeastern Pennsylvania, estimates that the figure should reach the 100 million-dollar mark this year.

The PMVB said, "For example, last fall the Radio Church of God held an assembly that drew 8,000 persons during a 10-day period in October. This year the Radio Church of God is preparing for 10,000 people over the same period of time."

Robert Uguccioni, Executive Director of the PMVB, said, "We hope to have the biggest month of May in our history and establish high marks during June, July, August and September this year."

He continued, "The Poconos are well established now as a fourseason vacationland. We had a fabulous winter season and there is no reason to doubt that the spring, summer and fall tourist periods will be anything but history-making financially, socially and guest-wise."

Plans are already underway by resort owners to bring in the top stage, screen and television personalities. A year ago such names stars as Gordon MacRae, Jane Morgan and Rip Torn headlined shows in the Poconos. Top-flight stage shows are also scheduled for the playhouse in the region. Horse lovers can have their fun at the trotters races at the Poconos own Poconos Downs Race Track.

Wild animals, who are as tame as Mother Nature, are available at farms designed to entertain the whole family.

Beauty is exalted in such nature paradises as Bushkill Falls, Winona Falls and Dingman's Falls.

Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — The power of television: Jackie "Moms" Mabley the 73-year-old Negro comedienne was working and not all the time for $350 a week until Joe Glaser booked her on the Mer Griffin Show: now "Moms" rates $5,000 a week and more in clubs. . . Nothing cheap about Louis Armstrong as a band-leader, his musicians (Marty Napoleon, Tyree Glenn, etc.) get up to $50,000 a year — all year.

Ted Brown finest decay in the business and actress Sylvia Miles quietly split but are friends and date often. . . Paula Beach admits the moxie of millionaire Woodworth Donahue — still tossing parties like for the Duke and Duchess of Windsor after seven operations. . . What have Bishop Sheen, Jackie Kennedy and TV wrestling in common? They've all won "Emmys" in the TV past. . . Bishop Sheen beat out Adlai Stevenson but then, who didn't. . . Observation after watching Joey Bishop's TV music man Johnny Mann: Bert Parks West.

Our items that The Metopera's Rudolph Bing was offered the Vienna State Opera boss-job, and that London Bridge was bought by the McCullochs, collaborated. . . Lady Bonzed actress Ann Bancroft and in the minis-ummation advised Anne. "This is the price you pay for Fame," to which Anne replied, "No — Fame is the price you pay for Success." . . Impressionist John Byner's cheerful stature grows right on up: his comedy beyond the impressions is valid and expands him to rich warm wallop beyond facile imitation.

MGM Veep Ray Kluge's okay after a heart attack. . . Castro Convertible tycoon Bernard Castro's son junior and Julie Ann Nordstrom wed July 6 in Ft. Lauderdale. . . Money is square, too: Lawrence Welk just bought his 18th and 19th music publishing firm. . . Both Dean and Frankie have been advised by their docs to act their middle-age. . . Round Tables Princess Nyeele's prince charming is newspaper (Columbia Features) exec Bill Thomas; gave her an engagement sparkler; from Bloomingdale.

Incidentally, don't miss Louis Armstrong at the Latin Quarter: Satch makes it the best floor show in town. . . Planned Parenthood worker Karin Jay lost her door-to-door job dispensing birth control literature: eight months pregnant. . . Shakeup at True Mag. . . Baniff President Harding Lawrence gave bride Mary Wells a blended wedding present: an 8,000-acre Arizona ranch. . . Ron Buller's Patents' mag piece about flying 30,000 miles eight-month-old Daughter Alexandra has a cute title: "Jetting With the Wet Set."

Small ill-wind for Bobby: a "rock" dominating convention at Grossinger's in the Catskills (supervised by Yeshiva U.'s Dr. Nat Fleischer) gave the New York Sen. only a handful of votes: "Draft-LBJ" won overwhelmingly. . . "Nathan's Famous Hot Dog Cookbook" by the Coney Island redhot tycoon Murray Handwerker will list 150 ways to cook a weenie.

Jackie Kennedy's cook Annemarie Hulse indeed was no ordinary skilleteer: she dined frequently at such posh spots as the Voinis, rubbing elbows with guests she often served in Jackie's dining room: once she told Voinis owner Hy Uchitel Jackie complained a bit about food bills. . . Don't we all?

Copacabana impressionist David Frye hangs all sorts of unexpected celebrities out on his limb: Bill Buckley and Sen. Jake Javits frantically. . . Fine composer Manhattan Serenade, Dolores et al. Louis Alter is rich enough to write one for free: "Serenade to Webster Hall," for his son Adam's school. . . Alistair Cooke's compliment to Goldie Hawkins as Alistair celebrated his 1,000th weekly broadcast to England from the U.S.: "When it comes to chasing down tunes of the 20s, Goldie is the only man who can play every tune no else ever heard of." True.

Ross and Jacqueline Heiney (owners of the Jolly Sixpence and Jolley Shilling puppets) welcomed a son, Ross Francis at New York Hospital. . . Discotecks are ear-blasting enough but to break the monotony, as well as cardrums, they now play taped machine-gun fire to vary the rock-roll riot. . . Papela Franklin played a child in "Our Mother's House" and overnight ripened into shape for a nude scene in the "Prime of Miss Jean Brodie" movie.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jules Power is an energetic television producer in his late 40s who, considerably to his own surprise, has become a recognized and published authority on sex.

His specialty is sex education specifically designed for family consumption, particularly those members from about age six through the early teens.

Power was busily turning out a series of young people's programs, "Discovery," for ABC's Sunday afternoon schedule when he happened upon the subject of reproduction and treated it on TV in a manner that, about three years ago, landed him on some best-seller lists and made his book, "Now Life Begins," a book club selection.

The 1963 "Discovery" program was called "The Day Life Begins," and his forthright, matter-of-fact treatment was so effective that he was approached by a publisher who asked him to expand it into "How Life Begins," a volume aimed at youngsters between eight and 14.

But birds—as well as bees—says Power, are very poor examples of the human birth process. He prefers members of the animal kingdom—a Cocker Spaniel giving birth to a litter of puppies on camera; some unusual microphotography showing the meeting of human egg and sperm. Most daring of all, there is a segment showing the actual birth of a child.

"Five years ago," the producer reflected, "we couldn't even use the word 'sperm' on television. And now we can shoot for the family audience with a prime time special, so that parents can sit down and watch the program with their children. That's progress."

"We have tried to put the program together in such a form that the younger children will be interested in seeing the animals—the Spaniel and some undersea film showing the male seahorse in its unusual maternal role."

we care

what kind of coffeemaker do you use?

It really doesn't matter.
Any coffeemaker can give you a good cup of coffee, providing you use a fine fresh coffee that is ground exactly right for your coffeemaker.

We've always known that the correct grind is important to coffee flavor.
That's why, years ago, we developed Custom-Grinding.
That's why we don't have just one or two grinds but seven different grinds... to fit any coffeemaker, including electric percolators, of course, (Ask for medium-fine grind for electric).

Custom-Grinding means a little extra work for us and a little extra time for you.
(It takes 15 seconds to grind a pound).
But what a difference in flavor those few seconds make.

You know, there's only one reason we insist on selling custom-ground bean coffees... WE CARE.

Long-term care listed by state

Record Harrisburg Bureau
HARRISBURG — The State Department of Public Welfare said Wednesday that during the month of February, 79 Monroe County residents were receiving long-term institutional care at a cost total of $15,562, paid for by the state, with the aid of federal funds and some county money.

Of this number, 62 were in county institutions with 60 listed as medically needy persons receiving care totaling $12,615. The remaining two were blind persons receiving $235 in care.

The medically needy persons were not on relief but their bills were paid because they are in a low-income status, according to the department.

In addition, 17 old age assistance recipients in private nursing homes received a total of $2852 in care.

Expenses split
Expenses were split by the county, state and federal government with Monroe County paying $5573, the state $1162 and the federal government $8727.

Meanwhile in neighboring Pike County 10 old age assistance recipients in private nursing homes received care totaling $2011 while one disabled person received $215 in care.

Of the $2226 in long-term institution care expenses during February in Pike County, the state paid $750 as its share of expenses and the federal government paid $1,476.

Moravian prexy set to retire

BETHLEHEM — Dr. Raymond S. Haupt, president of Moravian College since 1944, has expressed his desire to relinquish his responsibilities as chief administrative officer at the end of the 1968-1969 academic year "or as soon thereafter as practical."

The announcement was made public Tuesday by Beauchamp E. Smith of York, chairman of the Board of Trustees.

Green river of United States dollars flows over kingdom of Thailand

BANGKOK (AP) — A green river of American dollars washes the old Buddhist kingdom of Thailand, leaving the Thais dazed.

Their capital, Bangkok, has been transformed into Asia's fun city, and hardly a province has escaped the heavy impact of the American presence.

One person in every 600 in this nation of 32 million is an American. There are 50,000 or so here: 43,000 military, the rest civilians either connected with the U.S. aid effort against communism or with business interests. They have stimulated an economic boom which sophisticated government management has managed to keep under control.

It's the social side-effects that many a Thai fears.

"Thailand," says a guidebook, "has much to offer visitors in the way of entertainment as well as education." Bangkok certainly has. The capital, according to an unofficial but reliable survey, has 200 Buddhist temples, 2,200 bars and 50,000 prostitutes. Bars and prostitutes existed long before the influx, but the U.S. presence increased such business.

The Americans have helped bring about a dramatic change in Bangkok and promise to do likewise for other urban areas while they encourage the fight against Communist insurgency in the poverty-stricken north-east which makes up one-third of the country's population.

This used to be a hot, lazy tropical city resting comfortably and languidly along the muddy Chao Phraya River. Now it is sprawled out for miles in every direction, a noisy megalopolis swollen to two million and growing.

Everybody from the banker to the bootblack is busy. The city bustles as no other mainland Asian metropolis. Streets are clogged with thousands of American, European and Japanese automobiles and swarms of motorbikes.

The picturesque klongs, (canals) once the city's arteries of commerce and carriers of water and waste, have been filled in and paved over. Only a few, like the one near the Royal Palace, have been retained for historical reasons.

Gone are the story-book hotels, with their distinctively oriental flavor, bamboo curtains and wide verandas overlooking the river, hot rooms cooled by big, noisy overhead fans. The hotels are now enclosed in glass and stone, sealed off from the outside atmosphere, fully air-conditioned.

Transformation is overtaking many an urban area: Korat, Udorn, Ubon, Nakhon Phanom, wherever there are American bases. The areas are blossoming with hotels and businesses

Even smaller towns have good airports now. Roads get better all the time.

Not all of this can be traceable to the flood of dollars, but it has supplied much of the momentum.

U.S. economic and military aid together in 1967 totaled more than $119 million, and a flood of dollars comes in from the Americans stationed here, from American soldiers on leave from Vietnam, from American tourists, from American businesses.

Over the years, more than $800 million has come here in economic and military aid, besides $1 billion for U.S. construction of bases.

When a road is built it means a village which never knew direct communications with the rest of the country now has it. It brings merchants to serve the new traffic, new jobs, people to buy produce, to sell goods and services, buses which reduce to half a day a journey which took a week. It brings police and security. It brings the government presence, rules and regulations and the tax collector.
